Azād Foundation

YEAR BOOK
2023-2024

INTRODUCTION

Welcome to the 2023–24 yearbook, a documentary platform to celebrate the inspiring journey of empowered women at Azad Foundation who have boldly challenged norms and pioneered new paths in non-traditional livelihoods. Azad Foundation, a professional feminist organization, is dedicated to helping resource-poor women break free from societal constraints by providing them with opportunities in non-traditional livelihoods like professional driving. Through its flagship "Women with Wheels" (WWW) program, Azad trains women from economically marginalized backgrounds, equipping them with the skills and knowledge needed to succeed in these fields while promoting self-reliance and awareness of their rights.

Since 2008, Azad Foundation has worked to dismantle patriarchal barriers, enabling women to earn with dignity, achieve economic independence, and fully participate in society. Operating across Delhi, Jaipur, Kolkata, and Chennai, and through partners in several other cities, Azad expanded its WWW program in 2020–21 to include 2-wheeler training in Chennai. In 2023–24, 511 women successfully earned their permanent driving licenses, with 347 women qualifying to drive 4-wheelers and 164 women securing their 2-wheeler licenses across 7 centers in Azad in Delhi, Kolkata, Jaipur and Chennai. This yearbook stands as a testament to their remarkable dedication and the transformative journeys they have undertaken.

In these pages, you will find inspiring stories of resilience and courage, as each woman defies stereotypes and pursues her aspirations with unwavering resolve. Their stories remind us of the power of equal opportunity and of challenging societal limits, showing us the transformative impact when women can pursue their passions freely. We invite you to get immersed in the remarkable journeys of these women who have redefined possibility, bringing new hope for others within and beyond their communities.

We obtained consent from each trainee featured in the yearbook to share their stories, names, and photographs. For those who chose not to share their identities or stories, we have respected their decision and not included their narratives in this publication.

Join us in celebrating these extraordinary women who have shattered ceilings, bridged divides, and enriched their lives and of those around them through their audacity to dream differently. As we showcase their accomplishments, we hope to inspire a new generation to embrace their aspirations with zeal and transform the landscape of opportunities for women in every corner of the world. This yearbook is a tribute to the fierce determination that resides within every woman and an invitation to chart a course that defies convention.

Parimala's story is a touching example of overcoming personal and family challenges to find a better life. She faced many difficulties at home, including her husband's alcoholism and the resulting conflicts. Despite her dedication and hope that things would improve, the financial strain and her son's frustration pushed her to look for new opportunities.

When Parimala heard about Azad and their training program, she decided to join, hoping it would help her family's situation. She faced many obstacles, including her husband's frequent illnesses and her own inconsistent attendance. Despite these challenges, she kept going, earning her learner's and permanent driver's licenses, even though it was tough and she had to start over several times.

Tragically, her husband passed away while she was still in training, adding to her grief. Yet, she didn't give up. After finishing the training, she chose to move back to her hometown with her mother to take some time to think about her future. Parimala's journey is a beautiful story of resilience and hope. It shows how, even in the face of great hardship, determination and support can help transform one's life.

Aishwarya's story is a remarkable testament to perseverance and courage. Married for five years, she and her supportive husband faced intense pressure from their community to start a family. Despite these personal challenges, Aishwarya chose to embark on a new path by learning to ride a 2-wheeler. Initially, her husband was uncertain about her decision, but Aishwarya received strong support from her mother and friends. Driven by determination, she quickly mastered riding skills. She particularly appreciated the classes at Azad, especially those on gender and legal rights, which helped her navigate societal pressures about having a child.

However, Aishwarya faced delays in getting a date for her driving license test. Undeterred, the training team tirelessly advocated on her behalf, visiting the RTO multiple times and even meeting with the commissioner to secure a test date. Their hard work paid off when Aishwarya passed her test on the first attempt. Though health issues later slowed her job search, Aishwarya completed her training and road practice with confidence. She now rides skillfully and remains hopeful about finding employment soon. Aishwarya's journey illustrates the profound impact of determination and support in overcoming obstacles and achieving one's goals.

Lavanya, lives with her husband and children. She joined the Azad Foundation with a clear goal: to earn her license and gain independence. Despite her husband's constant belittlement and refusal to value her efforts, Lavanya was resolute in improving her situation. Before coming to Azad, she took on various jobs, including working as a caretaker, but the insults and arguments from her husband deeply affected her self-esteem and family life.

The Women with Wheels training at Azad to obtain her license was a challenging journey. Lavanya struggled with balancing the 2-wheeler due to her height and suffered multiple knee injuries. Her first attempt to acquiring a permanent licence was unsuccessful, but her determination remained unshaken. Lavanya's perseverance eventually paid off when finally obtained her licence.

Further, her husband's illness delayed her job search, and she secured a flexible job delivering tea packets, earning around Rs. 10,000 a month. This role enabled her to contribute financially while managing her family responsibilities. Lavanya's journey highlights the strength and commitment needed to overcome personal and external challenges and achieve one's goals.

Amutha, lives with her husband and two children, managing daily expenses on the limited and fixed amount of Rs. 200-300 that her husband, a daily wage worker, provides. Despite this financial constraint and the expectation for her to handle all household costs, even in emergencies, Amutha never asked for more money due to fear of conflict, maintaining a quiet and submissive demeanour. Before joining the Women With Wheels training at Azad, Amutha had never travelled alone and worked as a domestic help to support her family financially. Her husband was initially against her decision to join, but with encouragement from a mobilizer, Amutha chose to seize this opportunity for personal growth.

The training presented its own set of challenges for Amutha, including difficulties with reading and delays in securing a Permanent License, which affected her confidence. However, she persevered through these obstacles and successfully obtained her driving license on her first attempt. The ability to ride alone marked a significant boost to Amutha's self-esteem. Though family issues have delayed her job search, she now feels empowered and confident in her capability to work and travel independently.

Hemalatha's story is a powerful example of growth and determination. Living with her supportive husband, young son, and mother-in-law, Hemalatha faced the challenge of contributing financially while managing her family responsibilities. Her husband, a delivery partner, worked hard but struggled with debt, and Hemalatha wanted to ease their financial burden and save for their son's future.

When Hemalatha discovered the Azad Foundation's Women with Wheels (WWW) program, she was eager to join. However, she had to wait until her son was old enough to attend a balwadi before she could take this step. Once that was possible, she embraced the opportunity with enthusiasm. Her husband supported her decision, and she quickly adapted to the training, excelling in both riding and passing her license test. After completing the training, Hemalatha purchased a 2-wheeler and started working with Blinkit, focusing on short-distance deliveries to maintain a balance between work and family life. Realizing that her earnings were just covering the vehicle EMI, she sought better financial stability by transitioning to Flipkart and later to Delhivery.

Hemalatha's journey highlights her transformation into a confident, self-reliant woman who successfully juggles her professional and personal responsibilities. Her story underscores the impact of perseverance and support in achieving financial independence and personal growth.

Velvizhi, a mother of three endured years of violence and insults from her daily wage laborer husband. Despite holding a postgraduate degree, she faced difficulties in securing a decent job and felt trapped by her circumstances. Her previous job at a mobile shop, which involved long hours and a meager salary of was exploitative and left her feeling undervalued. Determined to secure a better future for herself and her children, Velvizhi decided to join Women with Wheels training program at Azad.

She joined the program with determination, quickly mastering two-wheeler riding and showing great enthusiasm in her English classes. Her hard work paid off when she passed her permanent license test on her first attempt. After completing her training, Velvizhi bought a 2-wheeler and managed the EMI payments herself. Initially, she earned ₹400-500 daily, but as she gained confidence and expertise, her earnings increased to ₹800-1,000 per day. This new job provided her with financial stability, reduced her dependence on her husband, and allowed her to support her children independently. Velvizhi's newfound confidence also led her to stand up to her husband and express her aspiration to become an ambulance driver.

Ramya. T, as a mother of two, faced significant challenges. Her husband, a daily wage worker and alcoholic, was rude and uncooperative, leaving Ramya to grapple with financial instability while trying to support her 17-year-old son and 14-year-old daughter. Initially, Ramya doubted her ability to learn to ride a two-wheeler, having never even ridden a bicycle. Her frustrations were compounded by her husband's lack of support. However, her perspective began to change as she engaged in the gender rights training offered by the Azad Foundation. She realized she didn't have to bear the family burden alone and could share responsibilities with her children. This newfound understanding boosted her confidence.

Despite facing a financial crisis when her husband stopped providing money, Ramya was determined not to abandon her training. She persevered, completed her training, and successfully obtained her permanent license. After investing in a 2-wheeler, Ramya began working with Dunzo, earning a decent salary. She now proudly supports her family independently, demonstrating her strength and self-reliance despite the challenges she faces.

Gayathri's story is one of remarkable courage and personal transformation. Imagine a stay-at-home mother of two, living with her husband and her mother-in-law. Life for Gayathri was a routine of daily responsibilities, with never a thought about stepping outside this cycle. But then, her sister's encouragement became the spark that ignited a flame of change within her. The thought of learning to drive for the first time, especially with no prior work experience, seemed daunting. Yet, she found an unexpected source of strength in the supportive team at the Azad Foundation, whose encouragement helped her see beyond her insecurities.

As Gayathri started to gain confidence, her vision of a different future began to take shape—one where she could contribute financially and earn respect within her family. Her perseverance and hard work led her to pass the driving test for her permanent license on the very first try. It was a victory that not only boosted her self-esteem but also reaffirmed her belief in her abilities. Just when things seemed to be falling into place, life threw a curveball. An urgent family emergency required Gayathri to return to her hometown to care for her ailing father. It was a tough decision, but her resilience shone through even in this challenging time. Though her new job in Chennai had to be put on hold, Gayathri's hope and determination remain unshaken. Even as she navigates this new chapter, her spirit remains steadfast, and she looks forward to resuming her journey once she returns to Chennai.

Sivagami, 34-year-old is a single mother juggling the responsibilities of raising her two young children: a spirited 9-year-old son and a curious 2.5-year-old daughter. Originally from Marakkanam near Pondicherry, Sivagami's life took a drastic turn when she moved to Chennai after marriage. Her husband, an auto driver, who was very loving and caring initially suddenly became abusive and eventually left her and their children for another woman, abandoning them both emotionally and financially. This harsh treatment took a toll on her spirit. In the darkest moments, when despair seemed overwhelming and thoughts of suicide haunted her, Sivagami found a glimmer of hope in her love for her children.

Her turning point came when her sister who is a trainee at the Azad Foundation, introduced her to the organization. Determined to rebuild her life and prove her worth, Sivagami decided to join the Women With Wheels training program. The training sessions were not easy—each step forward was a testament to her courage and resolve. She learned to ride a two-wheeler, earned her driving license, and took a bold step by joining Blinkit. Today, Sivagami's hard work has paid off. She earns a decent pay per month, which has brought her not just financial stability, but also a profound sense of dignity.

Sasisree, living with her parents, sister, and brother, has always felt like an outsider in her home. Despite her graduation and academic achievements, she was met with favouritism towards her siblings and a constant undermining of her abilities. This treatment deeply affected her self-confidence and made her life decisions more challenging.

The turning point came when she discovered the Women with Wheels (WWW) training program. It represented a chance to break free from the limitations imposed by her family and to carve out a space where she could truly prove her worth. Although she started shy and reserved, the supportive environment of the training helped her shed her self-doubts. Sasisree's determination shone through as she successfully passed her driving test on her first attempt.

After completing the program, personal reasons took Sasisree back to her native village. Yet, her resolve remains unshaken. She plans to return soon and is eager to seek employment where she can apply her newfound skills. For Sasisree, this journey is more than just about driving; it's about proving to herself and her family that she is capable and worthy.

Srimathi, living with her parents and siblings, faced many restrictions that shaped her daily life—from limits on her mobility and dress to obstacles in pursuing her aspirations. Despite her deep desire for higher education and a career, her parents initially refused to support her ambitions and were hesitant about letting her work. When Srimathi learned about the Women with Wheels (WWW) training program, she found it a great opportunity and wanted to join. Her parents reluctantly agreed to permit her. However, the path wasn't smooth. Family issues and doubts about her relationships led to irregular attendance. Her parents imposed further restrictions, citing the need for her assistance with her brother's marriage. Despite these setbacks, Srimathi's determination remained strong.

Eventually, Srimathi passed her Permanent License (PL) test on her first attempt—a remarkable achievement that underscored her perseverance. Although she is equipped with employable skills, family-related challenges prevent her from starting work. The WWW team continues to stand by her, providing ongoing support and encouragement, as Srimathi navigates these final obstacles.

Induja, married at 21, found herself caught between neglect from her parents and the controlling behaviour of her husband. Her parents had pressured her into moving to Chennai due to financial constraints, disregarding her dreams and aspirations. In Chennai, she met her now husband, who initially promised support but later became a source of emotional control, limiting her access to money and obstructing her ability to work. Despite these obstacles, Induja found hope in the Women with Wheels (WWW) training program. Her desire to reclaim her independence drove her to join the program, even though her husband opposed the idea.

When Induja joined the Women With Wheels training program, she constantly received support from the training team, Induja also faced her fears and passed her driving test and successfully acquired her permanent licence. This was a significant boost to her self-confidence. Although she has completed all non-technical training, her path to employment has been delayed by ongoing family issues, particularly her husband's resistance. Induja remains resolute, planning to pursue job opportunities as soon as she can address these family challenges and negotiate with her husband.

Ishwarya, living with her husband and two young children, encountered numerous challenges. Her husband, an office boy, subjected her to emotional abuse leaving her without financial or emotional support. Despite this, Ishwarya was determined to seize the opportunity to change her life when she learned about the Women with Wheels (WWW) program through pamphlets and decided to join the training with enthusiasm.

Even while grappling with the pain of a hernia, Ishwarya's commitment to the training never wavered. She attended each session diligently, driven by a deep desire for independence and a better future for herself and her children. Her determination and thirst for independence got even stronger at Azad through attending various courses related to women's rights, legal rights and self defence. Her perseverance was tested during the Permanent License (PL) test, where she endured significant pain but managed to pass on her first attempt. This accomplishment was more than a milestone – it's her strength and her resolve to transform her life despite the hurdles.

However, ongoing health issues have currently prevented her from starting a job. Ishwarya is awaiting surgery, but her plans to pursue employment remain steadfast.

Her journey, characterized by her unwavering determination and ability to face hardship, reflects a profound resilience and a commitment to changing her circumstances.

Rajeshwari's desire to become financially independent brought her to the Azad Foundation. Living with her husband - a salesman at a jewellery shop, and their two children, Rajeshwari had always dreamed of reducing her reliance on her husband and reclaiming her financial stability. Previously, she had worked as a sales executive but had to leave her job for childcare responsibilities and family demands.

When Rajeshwari discovered the Women With Wheels (WWW) training program, she viewed it as a crucial chance to improve her situation. Her determination was so strong that, even with the significant delays caused by the floods, she remained committed to completing her training and obtaining her Permanent License (PL). Despite facing numerous setbacks, Rajeshwari's perseverance and resolve never faltered.

Finally, Her hard work paid off when she passed her PL test on the first attempt, a milestone that brought her immense joy and satisfaction. With her PL in hand, Rajeshwari is eager to return to work. However, she is currently facing some family issues. Rajeshwari's future looks bright, as she plans to apply her skills and embark on a new chapter in her career once her family matters are sorted out.

Divya, lives with her husband, an auto driver, and their two young children. Eager for independence and a better balance between work and family, Divya decided to join the Women With Wheels (WWW) training program with her friend. She hoped that learning to ride a scooter would give her the freedom to travel independently and find a job. Divya attended her classes regularly, and her hard work paid off when she passed her Permanent License (PL) tests on the first try.

The training not only taught Divya how to drive but also helped her become more confident and assertive. The non-technical sessions that she attended were a source of inspiration and knowledge for her. She learnt the skill of self-defence, gathered information about the legal rights of a woman, understood the patriarchy and gender norms and how they affect the lives around her and became more informed about sexual and reproductive health issues. With her new skills and increased self-belief, Divya feels empowered. She wants to buy her vehicle and start a job very soon. She looks forward to a bright future for her family.

Lakshmi, although was already adept at riding a scooter, she was drawn to the Women with Wheels (WWW) training program with the promise of obtaining a permanent license and securing a position in the e-commerce industry. Balancing her life with a husband employed in a private company and two children, Lakshmi took up various small jobs to support her family. The WWW training program proved to be more than just a practical course; it significantly boosted her confidence and driving skills, thanks to its comprehensive focus on technical and personal development.

Soon after completing the program, Lakshmi landed a job with a biscuit company, which allowed her to deliver biscuits to shops and handle payments while enjoying the flexibility of designing her work schedule. This opportunity was not merely a career advancement for Lakshmi but also a powerful way to demonstrate perseverance and growth to her family. Her children, who had witnessed her relentless juggling of multiple roles and daily struggles, were inspired and proud as they saw their mother embark on this promising new path..

Hemaanthrikaa, lives with her husband and their three-year-old son. Encouraged by her father to seek independence and motivated by a mobilizer who introduced her to the Women with Wheels (WWW) training program at the Azad Foundation, she eagerly joined the initiative. Her commitment to learning was clear as she attended every session diligently, often accompanied by her friend. Hemaanthrikaa quickly mastered scooter riding and passed her permanent license (PL) test on her first attempt.

Despite her accomplishments, she faces the challenge of balancing her career goals with her family responsibilities. Without a support system in place for her son while she works, Hemaanthrikaa has chosen to postpone her job search until her son starts school. This decision will enable her to focus fully on her new career path while ensuring that her child receives the care and attention he needs. She is still in touch with the training team and her other friends and is eagerly waiting to come back as a professional in the e-commerce industry.

Latha, lives with her husband, their five-year-old daughter, and her father-in-law. Her husband, a painter, has been a pillar of support throughout her journey with the Women with Wheels (WWW) two-wheeler training program. Latha was driven by a deep desire to learn new skills and secure a job, aiming to contribute to the household and provide a brighter future for her child. To make her dreams come true, she took out a loan from a self-help group, with plans to repay it through her future earnings.

Her husband's support was unwavering; he often dropped her off at training sessions and encouraged her every step of the way. Despite facing health challenges during the program, Latha's resolve remained strong. She persevered through the difficulties and passed her permanent license (PL) test on her first attempt. As she focuses on regaining her health, Latha remains dedicated to finding employment. Reflecting on her experience, she shares, "I joined Azad with the dream of getting a job and easing the burden on my husband. But through this journey, I've also discovered the true meaning of independence. At Azad, I gained the freedom of mobility and the liberty of my thoughts. It has been a wonderful experience, and I'm grateful for everything I've learned and achieved."

Yuvarani, lives with her parents and two sisters. Her father, an auto driver and alcoholic, does not contribute to the family's well-being, which often leads to conflicts at home. Her mother works tirelessly managing a small shop to support the family. Despite being a graduate, Yuvarani found it challenging to secure a good job until she discovered the Women with Wheels (WWW) training program.

Driven by a desire to build her confidence, understand her rights, and learn how to ride a scooter, Yuvarani eagerly enrolled in the program. The training proved to be transformative. Not only did she master riding a scooter and obtain her permanent license (PL), but she also found the courage to confront her father and support her mother in their daily struggles. The empowerment she gained from the training enabled her to assert herself more effectively and stand up for her family.

Despite facing pressure from her family to consider marriage and explore other job options, Yuvarani remains steadfast in her decision. She plans to discuss her aspirations with her family and gradually pursue a job in the e-commerce industry. Her determination and newfound confidence reflect her commitment to forging her path and contributing to her family's well-being.

Raichel, lives with her husband, their two sons, and her mother-in-law. Raichel endured significant violence in her marriage. Her husband, an auto driver, not only failed to contribute to the family's expenses but also indulged in luxuries for himself while neglecting the needs of his family. This situation was compounded by mistreatment from her parents, as she was financially dependent on them. Determined to break free from this cycle of dependence and violence, Raichel sought independence through the Women with Wheels (WWW) training program. Her commitment paid off as she quickly mastered scooter riding, obtained her license, and secured a job with Blinkit. However, her journey was far from smooth. Her husband created further disturbances at work and even took her vehicle, but Raichel's resolve remained unshaken as she successfully reclaimed it. With ongoing support, Raichel is now exploring legal options to ensure a safe and violence-free life for herself and her children. Her determination to remain committed to her job and secure independence reflects her strength and resilience in adversity.

Sulekha, was navigating a particularly challenging period in her life when she decided to join the training program at Azad. Having recently separated from an abusive husband, she was embroiled in a lengthy three-year divorce process while living with her mother and six-year-old daughter. Financially dependent on her mother and brother, Sulekha managed to earn a modest income by assisting people with obtaining citizenship documents, but she faced mistreatment and blame from her family. They often criticized her for her life's difficulties and viewed her as a burden.

Determined to create a better future for herself and her daughter, Sulekha enrolled in the Women with Wheels (WWW) training program. Despite needing to take extended breaks due to the ongoing divorce and her struggles with depression, Azad provided her with consistent counselling and emotional support. Sulekha's perseverance paid off; she completed the training and obtained her permanent license on her first attempt. Her journey with Azad enhanced her confidence and lifted her spirits during a tumultuous time. With her newfound skills and confidence to build a more stable and fulfilling life for herself and her daughter.

Punitha, when first joined the training program, her confidence was low. She lived in a cramped one-room house with her husband, two children, and father-in-law. Despite her husband's diligent efforts, he was not respected by his family, leaving Punitha to find solace only in the company of her elderly grandmother. Though she shared a good understanding with her husband, she was overwhelmed by the responsibility of managing all household chores, from cooking to washing clothes, with no assistance from anyone else. Fearful of causing conflict, she kept her grievances to herself, believing that her lack of income was the main reason for her mistreatment.

Initially uncertain about working, Punitha's confidence began to build as she progressed through the training. The Women With Whes training program helped her enhance her communication skills, allowing her to articulate her opinions and set boundaries more effectively. Although she was initially terrified of riding a vehicle, she persisted and eventually earned her permanent license.

Encouraged by her husband, who supported the purchase of a vehicle, Punitha took a bold step forward. She began a small business selling and supplying flowers. With her new venture, she now earns around ₹9,000 per month, a significant boost to her self-esteem and happiness.

This newfound financial independence has not only improved her quality of life but also empowered her to stand tall and assert herself in her family and beyond.

Pavithra, lives with her husband and their two-year-old daughter. Her husband, who also works as a delivery partner, supports a family of 6 including his mother and two brothers. With their tight budget covering only daily expenses and leaving no room for savings, Pavithra decided to join the Women with Wheels (WWW) training program to contribute financially and save for her daughter's future.

Supported by her family, including her mother who took care of her daughter during the training, Pavithra initially felt timid and hesitant to voice her opinions. Despite facing a setback when her daughter fell ill, requiring her to take some leave, Pavithra remained committed to the program. As the training progressed, Pavithra's confidence grew. She quickly mastered riding the scooter and felt her self-assurance boost through the non-technical aspects of the training. Her perseverance paid off when she successfully obtained her permanent license on her first attempt, a milestone that filled her with pride and excitement. With her new skills and a license in hand, Pavithra is now focused on purchasing her vehicle and plans to seek employment soon. Her journey reflects her determination to enhance her family's financial stability.

Ezhilarasi, lives with her husband, two children, and her mother-in-law. Her husband works as a painter, and her mother-in-law supports her through housekeeping. Although her family generally supported her, Ezhilarasi felt that her dream of earning a living seemed far off due to her extensive household responsibilities. Recognizing that the financial demands would only grow as her children aged, Ezhilarasi realized she needed to contribute.

When she learned about the Women with Wheels (WWW) training program, she saw it as the perfect opportunity to start working toward her goal. Known for her outspoken and cheerful nature, Ezhilarasi approached the training with enthusiasm. She quickly mastered scooter riding and obtained her permanent license on her first attempt. Committed to her personal growth, she fully participated in all non-technical training sessions, which further boosted her confidence and helped her adopt a more positive outlook on life. Now, with her confidence renewed and a clear plan in mind, Ezhilarasi is ready to embark on her career journey. She plans to start working as soon as she has purchased her vehicle, eager to contribute financially and support her family in a meaningful way.

Bhavani. N, joined the Women with Wheels (WWW) training program with a clear and determined goal: to work, earn, and live with respect. Her husband fully supported her decision and she was determined to find a job that would allow her to balance work with family time. Although she initially doubted her ability, as she had never learned to ride a bicycle, Bhavani was resolute in her commitment to succeed in the driving training.

Approaching the training with enthusiasm and dedication, Bhavani quickly overcame her initial hesitation. She grew confident and found joy in riding, and was thrilled to pass her permanent license test on her first attempt. The non-technical aspects of the training, including spoken English and legal education, proved to be incredibly valuable. Learning to use Google Maps also greatly increased her confidence in navigating the city.

After negotiating with her husband, Bhavani purchased her vehicle which granted her the freedom to travel independently. She chose a job with flexible hours that allowed her to be present at home while earning a living. Bhavani now works as a delivery partner for Flipkart, earning a decent salary. Her newfound role not only supports her family financially but also provides her with a sense of respect and accomplishment.

Bhavani. S, joined the Women with Wheels (WWW) training program because of pressure from her friends. She lived with her husband, a daily wage labourer, who was very unsupportive of her desire to work. He even refused to get her a phone, making it hard for her to communicate with the training team. As a result, Bhavani had to rely on her friends to stay in touch and manage the training. Even though her husband watched her closely through her friends and didn't support her, Bhavani stayed committed to the training. She saw learning to ride a scooter as a way to gain personal freedom. Despite struggling to attend classes and dealing with her husband's unkind behaviour, she persevered.

Her hard work paid off when she earned her permanent license, which made her feel proud and confident. Bhavani was hopeful about the future and wanted to start working to help support her family. However, because of ongoing issues at home, she hasn't been able to find a job yet. Despite these difficulties, Bhavani's achievement and growing confidence are important steps toward her goal of independence and self-reliance.

Kalpana, joined the Women with Wheels (WWW) training program with a clear goal to earn a living with dignity and improve her standing in her own and her in-laws' families. She lives with her husband and three children. While her husband didn't directly restrict her, he was not supportive of household responsibilities, leaving Kalpana to handle everything at home. This situation and the family dynamics placed a heavy burden on her. Due to insufficient income, Kalpana often had to rely on her mother and brother for major expenses, who were not so welcoming and happy about this. Struggling to afford basic needs for her children and having to sacrifice many essentials, she felt undervalued, especially as her husband remained indifferent to their hardships.

Despite her talents and abilities, Kalpana struggled with low confidence because of her challenging circumstances. However, with motivation and support from the training team, she persevered through the program. She completed the training and earned her permanent license, finding joy and increased confidence in the legal and spoken English sessions. Kalpana had to take several leaves due to family issues but successfully finished the training. She has now joined Delhivery as a delivery executive, beginning a new chapter in her life and taking a significant step towards her goal of independence and dignity.

Elakkiya, lives with her husband, two sons, and her in-laws. Her husband and father-in-law work as daily wage labourers, but their combined income is insufficient to meet the family's needs. Despite this financial strain, Elakkiya has always been hardworking, taking on various small jobs to help cover household expenses. When she discovered the Women with Wheels (WWW) training program of the Azad Foundation, she saw it as a chance to improve her income and enhance her life. Encouraged by her friends, Elakkiya decided to join. Although her other job initially challenged her commitment, she remained dedicated and attended all the non-technical sessions. She was very keen to attend to gender and legal issues, which greatly boosted her confidence.

With the ongoing support and guidance from the training team, Elakkiya completed her training. She managed to persuade her family to help her buy a two-wheeler, which she intends to pay for in instalments. Elakkiya has now begun working with Flipkart, where she earns approximately Rs. 10,000 each month. This new job represents a major advancement for her, enhancing her financial stability and benefiting her family's overall well-being.

Srimathi, who lives with her husband and two children, faced severe domestic violence from her spouse, a daily wage worker. This violence rendered her life extraordinarily challenging. Despite being overwhelmed by these adversities, she persevered through numerous obstacles that made attending training sessions difficult. Her husband's restrictions and frequent intoxication, coupled with his insistence that she work for daily wages to support the family, added to her struggles. His growing suspicion and abuse whenever she attempted to attend training at Azad only deepened her hardships. Yet, in the face of such significant adversity, Srimathi's resolve remained unshaken. The mobilization team, her mother and trainers, offered unwavering support.

Their relentless encouragement played a crucial role in helping Srimathi complete her training and earn her license—a truly remarkable achievement given her circumstances. Even amidst ongoing abuse and the necessity of daily wage labour, Srimathi's spirit remained hopeful. Inspired by friends who found employment with Delhivery and buoyed by the support she received, she has chosen to pursue a job with Delhivery herself. This decision marks a hopeful and promising step forward for Srimathi, signalling a potential shift toward a more independent and brighter future. Her journey stands as a testament to resilience and the transformative power of support and determination.

Suganthi's journey began when a mobilizer she knew, introduced her to the Women With Wheels training program at Azad foundation. At the time, she was struggling to make ends meet with her meager daily wage, making stepping away from her job to pursue training seem nearly impossible. Her financial constraints left her hesitant, but persistent follow-ups helped her see the potential benefits of the program. Despite her initial doubts and low self-confidence, Suganthi decided to take a leap of faith and enroll. Her decision proved transformative when she achieved the remarkable milestone of learning to ride a two-wheeler on her own. This accomplishment filled her with immense pride and joy. The next challenge was the Permanent License (PL) test. Though she was nervous, Suganthi's determination and extra practice led her to pass on her first attempt, marking a moment of great personal triumph. Her enthusiasm continued as she completed all the non-technical training sessions. However, during this period, Suganthi began to experience severe headaches and dizziness, which unfortunately delayed her ability to start working immediately. When she finally joined Delhivery, it seemed like a promising new chapter. Yet, her health issues persisted, ultimately forcing her to leave the position. Despite this setback, Suganthi remains hopeful and is now dedicated to her treatment and recovery. Her story is one of resilience and courage, a testament to her ability to overcome challenges and continue striving for a better future.

Diksha, embarked on the training journey with a clear goal: to earn money that would fund her graduation. Living with her mother, brother, and grandmother, she faced the challenge of managing on a single income after her father left. With her mother prioritizing her brother's education, Diksha was forced to halt her studies after 12th grade due to financial constraints. This left her feeling undervalued, especially as her brother received more opportunities despite his academic struggles.

Determined to improve her situation, Diksha joined the training program to support herself. Initially, she was apprehensive about riding a scooter, but with time and practice, she built her confidence and passed the Permanent License (PL) test on her first attempt. Her enthusiasm grew as she completed road practice and started riding around the city, even bringing friends along for the ride. Now equipped with new skills and employable, Diksha is setting her sights on furthering her education by taking a computer course. Her journey reflects a powerful commitment to personal growth and self-sufficiency, as she moves forward with aspirations for continued development and success.

Bharathi, who lives with her husband and two children at her mother's home, joined the training program to provide financial support for her family. Her husband, an auto driver, also supports but his earnings are not enough to support her. Bharati came to know about Azad through a mobiliser who came to her house to give information about the Women With Wheels (WWW) training program at Azad Foundation. Initially, Bharathi struggled with low self-esteem and doubted her ability to ride and obtain her Permanent License (PL). Despite these concerns and delays in securing test dates, the team's unwavering encouragement helped her persevere. She passed the test on her first attempt, a significant achievement that marked a turning point in her confidence.

After completing the training, Bharathi started working with Rapido Pink but later transitioned to a supervisory role at a company within ICF, a position recommended by her uncle and perceived as safer. Although she left Rapido Pink, her newfound confidence in riding has been invaluable for commuting to her new job. This increased self-assurance has greatly boosted her self-esteem and enhanced her quality of life, reflecting her personal growth and resilience.

Jansi's life was a testament to resilience and commitment. Living with her mother and two young sons, she had been the cornerstone of her family's support system since the passing of her husband. Her mother contributed to the household through housekeeping work, but Jansi had to bear the primary responsibility for their well-being. Jansi took on the demanding role of a night-shift nurse. While the work was fulfilling, the relentless schedule began to affect her health and strained her ability to spend quality time with her children. The physical toll and emotional strain were becoming overwhelming. Then, a beacon of hope appeared in the form of a 2-wheeler training program at Azad Foundation. To Jansi, this training represented more than just a new skill; it was an opportunity to improve her circumstances and regain some control over her life. Despite her night shifts, Jansi was determined to make the most of this chance. She attended the training sessions during the day, juggling her responsibilities with fierce determination. However, the strain on her health became too significant, and she was forced to step away from the training to take a necessary break. This was a period of reflection and rest for Jansi. It was not a retreat but a strategic pause, a moment to recover and renew her strength. After six months, Jansi returned to the training with a renewed sense of purpose and determination. Her comeback was driven by an unyielding commitment to change her life for the better. This time, she completed the training successfully and obtained her Permanent License. Armed with her new qualifications, Jansi joined Delhivery as a part-time delivery executive. This role was not just a job; it was a means to balance her work with family responsibilities, providing her with the flexibility she needed. The change brought by this new role significantly enhanced her quality of life. Jansi could now support her family effectively while spending more precious moments with her children.

Prabavathy, struggling to support her family through cleaning jobs while facing health issues, saw a beacon of hope in a pamphlet for a 2-wheeler training program at Azad Foundation. Eager for a better future, she enrolled with high hopes. By gaining new skills through the program, Prabavathy aimed to secure better job opportunities, improve her financial stability, and alleviate some of the stress on her health and family life. However, the journey was not easy as Prabavathy frequently had to take leave from the training to care for her sick children, adding stress to her already demanding schedule. Compounding her challenges, she faced delays in securing a test slot for her license, which further tested her resolve. Despite these obstacles, the support and encouragement from the training team remained unwavering. They provided Prabavathy with the motivation she needed to keep going, helping her navigate through her difficulties. Her efforts eventually bore fruit when she received her provisional license on her first attempt. This was a significant milestone, marking a major achievement in her journey. Although she completed the training with success, ongoing family issues have prevented her from starting work immediately. Prabavathy's journey exemplifies the transformative impact of embracing opportunities for change and the strength of the human spirit.

Anjana, a 28-year-old from Bhalswa, Delhi, living with her parents and siblings, has faced significant challenges growing up in a financially strained household. With her father working as a sanitation worker, making ends meet was a constant struggle, motivating her to seek financial independence.

Discovering the Azad Foundation through an NGO was a pivotal moment for Anjana. By joining the WWW program, she began to break societal stereotypes and pursue a career in traditionally male-dominated fields like driving. Although her family initially resisted her ambitions, Anjana's determination and strength prevailed. With the mentorship she received, she successfully passed her driving test and obtained her permanent license.

This achievement not only boosted her confidence but also deepened her understanding of gender issues, empowering her to advocate for herself and others. Alongside her driving journey, Anjana is pursuing higher education through distance learning, showcasing her commitment to personal growth and independence. Her aspirations highlight her resilience and determination to forge a better future for herself and her family.

Mansi's journey is both inspiring and impactful. Living in Majnu Ka Tila, she has taken on significant responsibilities after losing her father at a young age. With her mother working tirelessly as a housekeeper with a meager salary and caring for two younger siblings, Mansi took it upon herself to pursue her education through distance learning at Delhi University while juggling household responsibilities. She also enrolled in a computer course, recognizing the importance of digital skills in today's world. Her initial interest in the Azad Foundation was rooted in a simple desire to learn to ride a scooter, but it blossomed into a much larger goal of becoming a professional driver. After engaging with the mobilization team, Mansi found clarity and decided to enroll in the WWW program, equipping herself with vital skills like GPS navigation and first aid. This not only empowered her but also challenged the traditional gender norms that are prevalent in her community. Mansi's aspirations reflect her quest for independence and her commitment to improving her family's circumstances. The balancing act of managing her studies, household duties, and driver training is undoubtedly demanding, but with her family's support and her unwavering determination, she is on a path to success. Her story underscores the transformative power of education and opportunity, serving as an inspiring example for many.

Pooja, at just 19, is not only pursuing her education in cosmetology but also taking proactive steps towards financial independence by learning to drive. With her father as the family's sole breadwinner, earning around ₹7,000 per month, Pooja's ambition shines through in her determination to uplift herself and her family. Pooja discovered Azad Foundation through their mobilization efforts and has been learning to drive a four-wheeler for the past six months. It's heartening to see that her family supports her decisions, dreams without any discrimination, granting her the freedom to explore her aspirations. Her involvement with the Azad Foundation has been transformative, allowing her to gain valuable skills and confidence. Pooja's extroverted personality and ability to connect with others enhance her experience in empowerment classes, further fueling her ambition. Her vision for the future and desire to contribute to her family's well-being underscore her character and resilience. By striving for self-sufficiency, Pooja is not just working towards her own goals but also aspiring to serve as a role model for her community, emphasizing the power of empowerment and determination in overcoming challenges.

Nisha Kumari, a 24-year-old from Haiderpur Badli, lives with her parents and three siblings- two sisters and one brother. Having completed 8th grade, she took a gap year to learn driving and pursued a cosmetology course to work as a beautician. Nisha's father is the family's primary earner.

For the past five months, she has been part of the Azad Foundation, inspired by her friend, a former trainee at Azad. Currently, Nisha is learning to drive a four-wheeler and has recently obtained her permanent license. She joined Azad due to her long-standing passion for driving and her eagerness to become more aware of her surroundings.

Nisha aspires to create an identity for herself in the society and live an independent, self-sufficient life. She believes choosing driving as a career will help her achieve these goals, allowing her to explore new opportunities and contribute positively to her family's well-being.

Phul Kumari, a resident of Bhalswa Dairy, lives with her parents and two younger siblings—a sister and a brother. Her father is a shopkeeper, and her mother is a housewife. Phul Kumari learned about the Azad Foundation through their outreach efforts and has been part of the organization for the past five months. She is currently in the process of honing her driving skills and has recently achieved a significant milestone by obtaining her permanent license. This accomplishment not only reflects her dedication but also sets the foundation for her aspirations in the driving field. Phul Kumari chose to enter the driving field due to her longstanding interest in it, believing that it offers greater autonomy in terms of working hours. She has received unwavering support from her family in her decision to join the Azad Foundation. With their encouragement, she aspires to purchase her own car in the future and pursue a career as a driver. This ambition reflects her desire for independence and her commitment to building a stable future for herself and her family.

Raveena, a 24-year-old from Bhalswa Dairy, lives with her parents and two siblings—an older brother and a younger sister. Her mother is a housewife, while her father, a painter, is the sole earner, making around ₹10,000 per month. The financial strain from her father's limited income, combined with her father's struggles with alcoholism and her grandmother's abuse towards her mother, made her life difficult at the home front since her childhood days. Adding to it, she and her family witnessed difficulties while filing police complaints, building a significant layer of stress. Planning to move out of the house owned by her father is a crucial step towards regaining control over their lives and creating a safer environment for Raveena and her siblings. Having completed her B.A. final year exam, she decided to join driving training at Azad. Raveena's decision to join the Azad Foundation, inspired by her mother's positive experience at Azad as a driving trainee, is a powerful testament to the impact of role models in our lives. Raveena's progress in learning to drive and obtaining her learner's license is a significant achievement. As she prepares for her permanent license and looks towards her future, Raveena is building a strong foundation for herself. The skills she's acquiring at Azad, especially in communication and personal presentation, will be invaluable not just in her driving career but in all aspects of her life. Her excitement about becoming a cab driver, balancing with her graduation, reflects her desire for financial independence and her commitment to supporting her family.

Chandrima, a determined 22-year-old from Jahangirpuri, lives with her parents and brother. Having completed her intermediate education, she is currently pursuing a degree. Her mother works in a factory, while her father, who recently began working as a security guard at an MNC, was previously the sole breadwinner. Her brother is in medical training. Before joining Azad, Chandrima worked in civil defense for a year but was compelled to leave due to harassment from a senior who made inappropriate comments. She faced similar challenges in a managerial role, which ultimately forced her to resign. These experiences highlight the unfortunate reality of workplace harassment that many women endure. Despite this adversity, Chandrima has shown remarkable resilience and a commitment to personal growth. A significant challenge arose when her mother suffered severe burns during Chandrima's 12th-grade final exams. During this difficult time, she balanced her job at civil defense with caregiving responsibilities, demonstrating incredible strength and dedication to her family. Now, after nine months with Azad, she has noticed many positive changes in herself. She has become more composed, learned to maintain her dignity, and improved her communication skills—significant achievements that reflect her growth. Chandrima's enthusiasm for classes at Azad, particularly in first aid and self-defense, underscores her proactive approach to personal safety and empowerment. Her journey so far is an inspiring testament to resilience and transformative power.

Renu, a dedicated four-wheeler trainee from Burari, lives with her three daughters and one son after losing her husband in December 2022 due to societal issues. Before this difficult period, she worked as a cook in various households and ran a market stall selling momos. As the sole provider for her family, Renu juggles household expenses and her children's education, which has understandably taken a toll on her energy and well-being. For the past eight months, Renu has been honing her driving skills at Azad Foundation, inspired to enroll by a supportive neighbor. This experience has significantly boosted her confidence; she has not only learned to drive but has also become more vocal and independent. Once shy, Renu now engages openly with others, showcasing her growth and newfound assertiveness. This journey has proven to be transformative, empowering her in many aspects of her life. Currently, Renu is at an advanced stage in her training and has been awarded the Rama Mohan Scholarship from Azad Foundation, which provides essential financial support for single women with limited income. With her sights set on achieving financial stability, Renu is committed to providing a better education for her children, ensuring they have greater opportunities for a brighter future. Her aspirations reflect her resilience and unwavering dedication to overcoming challenges.

Sheetal, a 21-year-old from Jahangirpuri, lives with her mother and brothers. After the loss of her father last year, who was the family's sole earner and worked as a chauffeur, she stepped up to support her family. Sheetal has completed her education up to the intermediate level, and her elder brother works as an ambulance driver. Determined to support her family after her father's death, Sheetal joined Azad in February with the hope of becoming independent. She came across Azad Foundation from a school friend and was also eager to assist other women in finding similar opportunities. At Azad, Sheetal has successfully learned to drive and recently obtained her permanent license. She is now focused on honing her driving skills so she can start working and help her elder brother support the family financially. Beyond driving, she has gained valuable skills from other Azad classes, including communication, first aid, and HR skills. She found the communication class especially beneficial, as it helped her improve her self-expression and interaction with others. Her commitment to helping other women find opportunities through Azad reflects her resilience and leadership and with her newly acquired skills, Sheetal is well on her way to making a positive impact on her family's future.

Bharti Yadav, is a determined 19-year-old from Mukund Kunj, where she lives with her family: her parents, two brothers, and a sister. Her father is the sole breadwinner, working as an auto driver to support the family and having also helped marry off his five sisters. Her mother is a homemaker, while her grandfather is a small farmer in their village. Despite the challenges, Bharti is committed to her education. She has completed her intermediate studies and is now in her final year of her bachelor's degree. Recognizing the financial challenges, she was determined to support her family financially while continuing her education. This led her to explore opportunities that would provide income.

She discovered Azad Foundation through the outreach team; decided to join, learn driving and acquire other valuable skills. Since starting with Azad in February 2022, Bharti has found the experience transformative. Recently, Bharti received her permanent driving license and is now preparing for employment. Over the past 16 months, Bharti has overcome her fear of public speaking, learned to manage her emotions, and significantly improved her confidence and behavioral skills. She particularly values the communication class, which she believes has greatly enhanced her life. Bharti aspires to be a skilled driver, support her family, and inspire other girls to join Azad and discover their own potential. Her journey is a testament to her determination and the positive impact of the opportunities she's embraced.

Tannu, lives in Haider-Pur, Delhi, with her three sisters and a brother. Her father works as a driver, while her mother is a homemaker. After completing 12th grade, Tannu took up a job at a call center to support her family. However, she had to leave that position due to health issues. This setback prompted her to explore new opportunities for growth and financial stability.

She discovered Azad Foundation through a mic campaign, which sparked her interest in the Women with Wheels (WWW) driving program. Seeing this as a chance to gain independence in a traditionally male-dominated field, Tannu enrolled, encouraged by her father despite her grandmother's belief that driving was meant for men. At Azad, Tannu not only learned to drive but also participated in sessions covering essential topics such as gender equality, women's rights, self-protection laws, reproductive health, food hygiene, first aid, and road signs. This comprehensive training provided her with the confidence and skills to navigate both the roads and the challenges of life.

Although she faced challenges by failing her driving test twice, Tannu's determination and the steadfast support from her family and Azad Foundation kept her motivated. On her third attempt, she proudly passed the test and obtained her driver's license, becoming an inspiration in her community. With her newfound skills, Tannu aims to complete her education and pursue a career as a professional driver, possibly with the DTC, to provide financial and emotional support to her family. Her journey is a powerful testament to resilience and the importance of pursuing one's dreams.

Nisha Ahmed, 26, lives in Wazirpur with her husband, two daughters, and in-laws. Originally from Lucknow, she moved to Delhi and married a Hindu man against her Muslim family's wishes. Her father never supported her education or accepted her marriage, and society often questioned their union. Despite these challenges, Nisha found strength in her supportive husband and in-laws.

After completing her 12th grade before marriage, she pursued her graduation with their encouragement. Although Nisha held several jobs after marriage, she eventually decided to take a break to focus on raising her daughters. Motivated by her husband to pursue her dreams, she joined Azad Foundation after learning about it from a friend while working at a COVID help desk. This opportunity opened a gateway to acquiring valuable skills and knowledge.

At Azad, Nisha gained insights into law and order, self-reproductive health, and improved her interview techniques through work readiness and communication classes. With her in-laws' continued support in caring for her children, she is now actively involved in family decisions, including property transactions. Nisha's journey reflects her resilience and the power of support in overcoming societal and personal obstacles.

Mamta, a determined woman, growing up in a close-knit family in Mukandpur, Delhi, lives with her five sisters, father, and mother. Her father is an electrician, working hard to support the family, while her mother manages the household as a dedicated housewife. Having completed her 12th grade, Mamta took up a job at a call center to support her family only to leave that role due to health issues. It was during this challenging time that she learned about the Azad Foundation from a mobilization team member during a mic campaign. Intrigued by their Women with Wheels (WWW) driving program, Mamta saw a unique opportunity to gain independence and skill while challenging traditional gender norms. By pursuing the Women with Wheels program, she not only defied her grandmother's beliefs but also took significant steps toward empowerment and independence. This program became a turning point in her life, offering her the chance to pursue her passion for driving and empowerment. At Azad Foundation, Mamta not only learned how to drive but also gained insights through various sessions. These included topics on gender equality, women's rights, self-protection laws, reproductive health, food hygiene, first aid, and road signs. Mamta's resilience truly shone through as she faced setbacks, failing her driving test twice. However, with unwavering support from Azad Foundation and her family, she persevered. Her determination paid off when she finally passed her test and proudly received her driver's license. Now, Mamta aims to complete her education and pursue a career as a professional driver. She is committed to providing both financial and emotional support to her family. Her journey is a testament to the power of persistence and the positive impact of community support.

Anita, a determined housewife from Sonia Vihar, is fueled by her dream to contribute to her family's future. Having completed only up to the 8th grade, she faced significant challenges in her childhood, including the loss of her mother at just 15 years and an early marriage. However, she was fortunate to find a supportive husband who encouraged her ambitions and believed in her potential. This foundation of support has been pivotal as Anita navigates her journey towards empowerment and independence. She learned about Azad Foundation through a friend of her husband, who had benefited from their driving program. Initially, she felt hesitant to step outside her home and pursue something new. However, the pressing need for additional income to support her children's education pushed her to take that leap. In just three months, Anita has not only secured her learner's license but also gained confidence that extends beyond driving. She skillfully balances her household responsibilities with her training and is now planning to travel independently. Her children are beaming with pride, and her husband's unwavering support has been a cornerstone of her journey. Motivated to become a professional driver, Anita is determined to contribute financially to her family while also inspiring other women with her resilience and dedication. Her journey reflects her commitment to personal growth and her belief in the power of pursuing one's dreams, no matter the obstacles.

Nazma, residing in Bhalswa-Dairy with her two children, mother, father and two brothers had once high hopes for a happy married life. However, her dreams were shattered when her husband's true nature emerged. He developed an addiction to alcohol, leading him to sell household items for money to feed his habit. His abusive behavior and controlling attitude created a toxic environment, forcing Nazma to make the painful decision to leave him and seek refuge with her mother. With her educational background, she began exploring opportunities to gain new skills and seek employment. Nazma felt a spark of hope when she learned about the Azad Foundation's Women with Wheels (WWW) program. The idea of learning to drive was not just about gaining a skill; it represented independence and the opportunity to earn a living. Excited yet nervous, she enrolled in the program, eager to embrace this chance to transform her life. The driving lessons provided her with a newfound sense of independence, while the classes on Gender Equality, communication skills and first-aid made her believe in self worth. When the day of her driving test finally arrived, Nazma felt a whirlwind of emotions. Nervous yet determined, she focused on all the hard work she had put into her training. A rush of joy and relief washed over her when she successfully passed the test and secured the driver's license. Throughout her journey, Nazma faced numerous challenges. Her husband's disapproval loomed large, casting shadows over her dreams. He often criticized her efforts, trying to undermine her confidence. Additionally, financial struggles made it difficult to balance her responsibilities and commitments. Yet, she found solace in the unwavering support of her friends and mentors at Azad. They became her pillars of strength, encouraging her when she felt discouraged and celebrating her successes with her. With each passing day, Nazma envisioned a future where she could provide a stable home for her family. She dreamed of purchasing a house and giving her children opportunities towards quality education and a brighter future. Nazma's journey became not just about her own empowerment, but about creating a legacy of strength and ambition for her family.

Rashmi, joined Azad Foundation with the goal of overcoming her fears and gaining independence. She faced significant challenges, especially when it came to traveling alone and dealing with societal pressures. The lengthy process of updating her Aadhaar could have been discouraging, but the supportive community at Azad played a crucial role in keeping her motivated. With their encouragement, she persevered through her four-wheeler training. At Azad, Rashmi experienced a remarkable transformation. Through the programs, she gained not only confidence but also a deeper understanding of patriarchy and its pervasive effects on daily life. She also became aware of gender discrimination in the workplace, realizing the vital role of women's independence in addressing societal inequalities. This newfound knowledge significantly diminished her fears, empowering her to face challenges head-on. Rashmi's aspiration to become a DTC driver is a testament to her determination to support her family financially and break societal barriers. Her training at Azad has not only put an edge on her driving skills but also instilled a strong sense of advocacy for gender equality and personal independence. Rashmi's commitment to her dreams is an inspiring reminder of the impact that empowerment and education can have on individuals and their communities.

Since joining Azad, Manju has truly blossomed, feeling a newfound sense of empowerment and independence. She quickly secured her driving license and is now gearing up for on-road practice. Azad's non-technical modules, such as first aid and self-defense, have been particularly impactful, significantly boosting her confidence and equipping her with essential life skills. Manju is determined to become a professional driver, with a clear goal of achieving financial independence. She envisions using her earnings to secure a better education and future for her children, showcasing her dedication to both self-improvement and family welfare. Manju's journey is a reminder of how determination and perseverance can change lives for the better.

Ameena, living in Jahangir Puri with her family, 24 years old shoulders significant responsibilities in her family, caring for a heart-stricken father and a disabled younger sister, while her mother works tirelessly as a maid to make ends meet. The presence of her elder sister as a feminist leader at Azad provides some community support, yet her brother's lack of financial contribution adds to the weight on Ameena's shoulders. Despite these challenges, Ameena has found a beacon of hope through the Azad Foundation. Inspired by the success stories of former alumni drivers, she took the initiative to join the program after completing her education up to the 10th grade. This decision has opened doors to new skills and a potential pathway to a stable job. Currently learning to drive and working at Blu Smart, Ameena is earning ₹15,000—a crucial step toward financial independence. The support from her family and the diverse training at Azad, which includes counseling, first aid, and gender awareness, have been pivotal in her growth. Her enthusiasm for expanding her skills reflects her determination to create a brighter future not just for herself, but also for her family. Ameena embodies the spirit of perseverance and hope, navigating her challenges with strength and ambition.

Sanjana, growing up in Holambi Kalan, her supportive family has played a crucial role in her development. Her father's catering job and her mother's work as a laborer provide a modest income, while her sister's success with the Azad Foundation serves as a powerful motivator for her own aspirations.

Enrolling in the four-wheeler driving course at Azad has been transformative for Sanjana. Not only has she gained essential driving skills, but she has also learned vital communication and self-defense techniques that bolster her confidence. These skills are paving the way for a brighter future.

Her dream of traveling to Hungary showcases her ambition and the positive influence of her trainer. Sanjana is determined to leverage her newfound skills to create opportunities for herself and support her family. With her unwavering determination, she is well on her way to a promising future, embodying hope and resilience in the face of adversity.

Kajal's story is a testament to resilience and ambition. Living in Bhalswa Dairy with her family, she navigates the challenges of financial strain, with her father earning ₹8,000 per month from his garbage shop and her mother dedicated to homemaking. Despite these hardships, Kajal is driven by her desire for independence and a better future for her family.

Having completed her 12th grade and spent three years at DCD, she found her passion for driving through the Azad Foundation's program, inspired by her friend Kamini, an alumni driver. This opportunity aligned perfectly with her interests and ambitions, and she took a courageous step toward uplifting her family's financial situation.

Kajal's commitment to community service through volunteer work with various NGOs highlights her dedication to positive change, particularly in empowering women to make their own choices. Her growing awareness of the challenges women face, coupled with her determination to fight against gender inequality, showcases her transformation.

Her statement, "Azad has motivated me to raise my voice against gender inequality," reflects her newfound confidence and resolve to advocate for herself and others. Kajal's journey embodies the idea that personal empowerment can spark broader societal change, inspiring those around her to challenge norms and pursue their aspirations. Through her efforts, she not only seeks to enhance her own life but also aims to support and uplift her family and community.

Gayatri, is a determined 20-year-old from Jahanghirpuri, living with her parents and four siblings. After completing her 12th grade, she decided to take a gap year to learn driving. Her father and elder brother work in a mobile repair shop, earning about ₹25,000 per month, while her mother is a homemaker.

Gayatri joined the Azad Foundation three months ago, motivated by a friend who had previously trained there. With her family's unwavering support, she recently obtained her permanent driving license. Initially shy and hesitant to communicate, she has gained significant confidence through her training and can now travel alone with ease.

The gender class at Azad has been pivotal in helping her clarify her career goals. Inspired by a fellow trainee, Gayatri aspires to work as a driver or become a trainer at the foundation. Her journey is a testament to her determination and highlights the transformative power of education and support in fostering personal and professional growth.

Damini, has shown remarkable resilience and determination in the face of challenges. Living in Jahanghirpuri with her family, she has taken significant steps to improve her situation and build a brighter future. With her father unable to work due to health issues and her mother earning ₹15,000 a month as a patient care worker. This situation puts added pressure on Damini, especially as she has younger siblings still in school.

Damini's journey with the Azad Foundation, sparked by her connection with the mobilization team during a community activity, has been transformative. At Azad, she gained essential skills in English, self-defense, and first aid, which have significantly boosted her confidence. Once hesitant to travel alone, Damini now navigates public transport with ease and stands up against any misbehavior or violence she encounters. The first aid training resonated deeply with her, especially after the loss of her uncle due to incorrect CPR—this experience has fueled her commitment to being prepared in emergencies. Recently, she obtained her permanent driving license and is gearing up for on-ground practice, further enhancing her independence.

Damini's dream of becoming an art and craft teacher reflects her passion for creativity and education. By completing her training at Azad Foundation and working at Sakha, she is strategically positioning herself to save money for an animation course at a reputable institute.

Nisha, a 22-year-old from Bhalswa Dairy, lives with her parents and has completed her education up to the 10th grade. Recently, her father, who was the sole earner as a driver, transitioned to a job in a private company, which, along with their financial difficulties, has created stress for the family. Nisha feels the weight of their situation and is eager to find a way to contribute and improve their circumstances. To achieve this, she joined Azad Foundation, aiming to gain confidence, enhance her communication skills, and work toward independence. Before her involvement with Azad, Nisha struggled to speak up in groups and felt hesitant in conversations. However, through the foundation's support and training, she has become more confident and articulate. Her experiences at Azad have deepened her understanding of women's empowerment, particularly the importance of financial independence. Nisha now recognizes how vital it is to support herself and her family, which has strengthened her determination to pursue her goals.

Her aspiration is to become a cab driver, allowing her to earn for her family and provide essential support, including education and basic necessities. Nisha is committed to breaking barriers and views this career as a pathway to financial independence. Her ambition reflects her dedication not only to her own growth but also to uplifting her loved ones and ensuring they have a brighter future.

Lali, a 33-year-old from Wazirpur, is an inspiring figure in her community. Living with her mother and two brothers, she has faced significant challenges since her father's tragic accident in her youth, which left her mother as the sole breadwinner. Motivated by her mother's tireless efforts, Lali took on the responsibility of providing for her family as the eldest sibling. Despite having only an 8th-grade education, Lali began working at 17 and has gained valuable experience in various jobs. Currently, she works as a staff nurse. Lali has always dreamed of owning a scooty, but financial constraints made that seem out of reach. When she learned about Azad Foundation in May 2023, she saw an opportunity to pursue her dream and secure stable employment. With the support of Azad Foundation, Lali has gained confidence, improved her English skills, and become more aware of her surroundings. This empowerment has inspired her to focus on becoming a delivery person, further supporting her family. Her determination to achieve her goals while uplifting her family exemplifies her resilience and commitment to building a better future. Lali dreams of building a home for her mother in their village, reflecting her love and dedication. She encourages other girls to embrace their own journeys, urging them to "live for yourself, love yourself, and live life on your own terms." This powerful message underscores her belief in self-empowerment and the importance of pursuing one's dreams, regardless of obstacles.

Nisha's journey is one of resilience and transformation. Six years ago, her husband abandoned her and their two daughters after years of abuse. Despite the fear and uncertainty, Nisha chose to leave the toxic relationship and start anew, renting a small room and working various jobs to support her family. Balancing household duties with work was a daily struggle, but Nisha was determined to rise above her circumstances. She aspired to build a life of dignity and respect, so when she saw an opportunity to learn to ride a scooter, she seized it. The process was challenging, with many setbacks, but she never gave up. After much persistence, she earned her permanent license, symbolising her newfound freedom. Nisha's dream is to be self-reliant and provide a better life for her daughters. She aims to inspire other women, proving that they too can thrive independently, overcoming even the toughest challenges life throws. Now she is working as a professional chauffeur in Blu Smart.

Renu, living in Karawal Nagar with her son and a large family of seven, found herself shouldering the responsibility of supporting her loved ones. Her father, once a daily wage labourer, could no longer contribute, leaving Renu to step in and provide for the family. Though she had a short-term job at Flipkart, it was not enough to secure the future she envisioned. She craved stability and the chance to build a life where her family could thrive, which led her to discover Azad through a mobilization canopy. When she joined Azad, Renu saw an opportunity to break free from the uncertainty that had always surrounded her. The promise of learning a valuable skill, like driving, was a unique chance to achieve the independence she had always desired. Her training at Azad was thorough, with a focus on building her driving skills, including various parking techniques at the Institute of Driving Training & Research (IDTR), She also took part in English and communication classes, which gave her the confidence to articulate her thoughts and navigate the world outside her home. Renu's journey wasn't without its challenges. Juggling her training with family responsibilities was difficult, leading to occasional gaps in attendance. However, her resolve never wavered. She recognized that the path to independence would not be straightforward but remained committed to her goal of becoming a flawless driver. With a permanent license in hand and newly acquired skills, she is ready to provide her family with a more secure and fulfilling life. The impact of her journey extends beyond just financial stability; it is also about setting an example for her son and inspiring other women in her community to strive for self-reliance.

Kajal, from Kalyanpuri, Delhi, grew up in a challenging environment as the eldest of seven. Her mother, a house help, was the family's sole earner, while her father, an alcoholic, did not contribute. Determined to change their situation, Kajal joined Azad Foundation with her mother's encouragement, aiming to gain independence and support her family.

Her journey at Azad brought a significant transformation, boosting her confidence and mobility. She embraced opportunities to learn driving, life skills, and participated in events like the OBR in Jafrabad. Communication classes with Suraj sir and gender training empowered her to assert her rights. Despite facing mockery during her driving test due to her height, Kajal passed on her first attempt, proving her doubters wrong. Now, Kajal openly expresses her aspirations, telling her family she isn't ready for marriage. She dreams of supporting her mother, helping her siblings, and one day buying a house with her earnings. Kajal's story is a testament to overcoming adversity through determination and support, setting an inspiring example for others.

Manju, in the vibrant neighbourhood of Trilokpuri, Delhi, finds herself at crossroads. Living with her two brothers, two sisters-in-law, and a younger sister, she has always felt the weight of familial expectations pressing down on her. While her brothers diligently manage the household expenses, the pressure to conform to traditional roles looms large—marriage seems to be the only path her family envisions for her. Yet, deep within, Manju harbours a fierce desire for independence. She dreams of a life where she makes her own decisions, unshackled from societal constraints. It was during a local survey that she first heard about Azad, a program dedicated to empowering women like herself. Intrigued, she enrolled and soon discovered a world that ignited her ambitions.

At Azad, Manju found her voice. The Gender and Communication classes were not just educational; they were transformative. With each session, she learned about her rights, the power of self-expression, and the importance of autonomy. These teachings resonated deeply with her, fortifying her resolve to carve out her destiny. Inspired and empowered, Manju now envisions a future where she owns a home in her name, a symbol of her independence and self-reliance. With newfound confidence, she aspires to be a beacon of change, proving that a woman's worth is not defined by her marital status but by her ability to stand tall and pursue her dreams.

Gulnaaz's life is a testament to resilience and transformation. Living with her husband, two daughters, and mother-in-law, she once found herself confined to traditional roles, her days filled with homemaking and household chores. Her husband, a school driver, is the family's primary breadwinner, earning ₹18,000 a month. Despite their financial challenges, he recognized Gulnaaz's potential and encouraged her to join Azad Foundation, a decision that would alter the course of her life. With his unwavering support at home, she embraced this opportunity, stepping out of her comfort zone to learn driving—a skill that would not only empower her but also redefine her identity.

Gulnaaz's journey at Azad was transformative. Through dedicated training, she gained confidence and practical skills, breaking free from the limitations imposed by her limited formal education. The day she obtained her permanent driving license she marked a pivotal moment in her life, celebrated joyfully with her family. This achievement was not merely a milestone; it symbolized her newfound autonomy and dignity. Gulnaaz now understands that she can earn for herself and support her family, driving forward towards independence. With a vision to empower her daughters to pursue their dreams, she stands determined to create a future where they too can thrive with confidence, proving that a woman's worth is defined by her capabilities, not her circumstances.

Gulshan's journey to independence began when she learned about the Azad Foundation through a mobilization team in her community. As a dedicated homemaker living with her husband, a school driver, and her mother-in-law, who struggles with health issues, Gulshan often felt confined by traditional gender roles. Encouraged by her supportive husband, she decided to step outside her daily routine and pursue her dream of learning to drive. Joining Azad transformed her life; she not only gained valuable driving skills but also enrolled in English classes, which reignited her passion for learning after years of focusing solely on her family.

Gulshan's hard work paid off when she passed her Permanent License (PL) test on her first attempt, a milestone celebrated with a family dinner that marked a memorable moment in her life. This experience has inspired her to aspire for more, as she now aims to support her daughters in achieving their dreams. Gulshan's newfound confidence and determination to earn with dignity reflect her journey from homemaker to empowered woman, paving the way for a brighter future for her family. With her ambition to be a role model for her daughters, Gulshan is determined to show them that independence and success are within reach.

Bharti's life reflects the challenges and aspirations of many women striving for independence. Living with her mother, who is the family's primary breadwinner working tirelessly at a hospital, and her brother, who earns but contributes little financially, Bharti felt the weight of her family's financial struggles. Previously employed at a jewellery shop for just ₹6,000 a month, she made the difficult decision to leave her job to better support her family's needs. However, her life took a transformative turn when she learned about the Azad Foundation from her friend Anjali, a trainee there. This opportunity became a beacon of hope for Bharti, igniting her desire for a brighter future.

Joining Azad marked a significant turning point for Bharti. The comprehensive training she received not only boosted her confidence but also honed her skills in public speaking, driving, and understanding her rights as a woman. With newfound self-assurance, she actively participated in community meetings and shared her inspiring journey during the OBR event, motivating others to pursue their dreams. Bharti's ultimate goal is to secure a position with Sakha commercial cabs, which would provide her with a stable income. Beyond that, she dreams of buying a house for herself and her mother, aiming to create a better life for both of them after enduring many hardships. With her punctuality and determination, Bharti stands ready to embrace both commercial and private placements, eager to forge a path towards independence and fulfilment.

Neha's life in a family of eight has always been a delicate balancing act, with her father earning just ₹2,000 a week from his job at a sandal company and her mother managing the household. For a long time, Neha felt confined to her home, lacking direction and engagement until she discovered the Azad Foundation through an OBR campaign in her neighbourhood and from a friend already involved. Motivated by a desire to improve her family's financial situation and support her father, Neha took a bold step and joined Azad. This decision marked the beginning of a transformative journey that would alter the course of her life.

At Azad, Neha participated in various classes that included English, mental health, and communication, which significantly boosted her confidence and expanded her skill set. As she developed her abilities, she became more assertive and capable of venturing out into the world, embracing opportunities she had previously thought were beyond her reach. Neha's ambition has now crystallized into a dream of buying a house and a car for her parents, a goal fueled by her deep desire to bring them happiness and stability. With her newfound dedication and voice, Neha is ready to take on both commercial and private placements, eager to make her dreams a reality and uplift her family's living conditions.

Riya's journey from a modest household, where her father worked as a whitewasher and her mother as a factory worker, was marked by witnessing violence at home. Learning about Azad Foundation through a friend became the turning point in her life. At Azad, she not only learned to ride a scooter but also discovered her rights, the importance of standing against violence, and gained skills in self-defense and communication. Securing her Permanent License in a short time symbolized a new chapter, where Riya found the courage to speak up and the confidence to dream beyond her circumstances.

With her license in hand, Riya is now determined to change her family's future. Her goal is to support her parents financially, ensure her younger brother can continue his education without hardship, and bring stability to their lives. She aims to break the cycle of silence and become self-sufficient, so she never has to rely on anyone again. Riya's story is one of resilience and transformation, as she paves her path to independence and a life of dignity.

Renu, has shown remarkable courage in rebuilding her life after enduring nine years in an abusive marriage marked by her husband's alcohol addiction, physical violence, and emotional distress. Struggling with PCOD and facing conflicts over her inability to have children, she made the difficult decision to divorce, prioritising her health and well-being. In April, she joined Azad Foundation's Women with Wheels program, attracted by the promise of free training and job opportunities. Despite financial difficulties, Renu found solace in the Azad community, where she gained knowledge about her rights and body and the confidence to reclaim her life.

Obtaining her permanent license marked a significant milestone in Renu's journey toward independence. With her license in hand, she is now focused on securing a job, improving her financial situation, and prioritizing her health. Inspired by her own story of overcoming adversity, Renu aims to empower other women, helping them find resilience and confidence amidst life's challenges. She is determined to not only transform her own life but also be a beacon of strength for others, proving that change is possible with courage and self-belief.

Kavita, lives in a family of five. Her father, the sole breadwinner, works as a caterer, while her mother manages the household. Kavita's younger brother and sister are still in school. Previously, she worked at Flipkart, earning ₹12,000 per month for about 18 months, but had to leave due to personal reasons. It was through her friend Renu, an existing trainee, that Kavita learned about the Azad Foundation and the opportunity to become a trained woman driver—a career path that immediately intrigued her because it offered both skills and job prospects.

Since joining the Women with Wheels program, Kavita's journey has been transformative. At IDTR, she learned various parking techniques and improved her driving skills significantly. The gender and communication sessions boosted her confidence, helping her overcome her shyness. Now, she speaks up when witnessing wrongdoing, a change she attributes to her communication training at Azad. Kavita values punctuality and is always eager to learn, feeling empowered by the supportive environment. Her ambition is clear: she wants to achieve financial independence, buy her own house and car, and never be in a position where she has to rely on someone else for support.

Manisha, has faced significant challenges but is determined to build a better future for herself and her two sons, 10-year-old Dipanshu and 2-year-old Dhruva. Her life took a difficult turn when her love marriage in 2011 ended in turmoil due to her husband's bad habits. The situation worsened when he eloped with Manisha's younger sister, leaving the family in shock and Manisha in a position where she had to file for divorce. Now living on rent, she relies on her parents for financial support, but her decision to marry for love has led to ongoing criticism from her family. Despite the judgment she faces, Manisha has promised her father that she will share her earnings with him once she starts earning.

Manisha's journey took a positive turn when she joined the Azad Foundation, introduced by a friend who saw the potential for her to stand on her own feet. At Azad, she has gained not only driving skills but also the courage to navigate life's challenges independently. Reflecting on her transformation, she recalls a time when she couldn't even cross the road without assistance. Now, with her permanent license in hand, she is ready to drive confidently on the road, free from the fears that once held her back. Manisha has found her voice and raises it against violence whenever she witnesses it. Her dream is to provide a good upbringing for her children, ensuring they grow up in a supportive and empowered environment, one that she is determined to create through her strength and resilience.

Rekha's life is a beautiful blend of dreams, determination, and family support. Living in a bustling household with her husband and two children—a daughter in 9th grade and a son in 3rd grade—she has always aspired to do more than just manage the home. Her husband, a dedicated driver, wholeheartedly supports her ambitions, encouraging her to pursue driving professionally. It was through a friend involved with the Azad Foundation that Rekha discovered an opportunity to turn her aspirations into reality.

Joining Azad has been a transformative experience for Rekha, filling her with joy and a sense of accomplishment. Having previously only been a passenger in cars, she now takes pride in driving herself, a change she describes as one of the greatest joys of her life. Securing her permanent license in a short period marked the realisation of a significant dream. Rekha envisions driving around Delhi and beyond, creating cherished memories with her children, who are thrilled at the thought of exploring the world with their mother—something they rarely experienced with their father. Her journey with Azad not only empowers her but also inspires her family, as they embrace the new adventures that await them.

Shanno's journey took a transformative turn when she discovered the Azad Foundation through a women's council NGO in her neighbourhood. Coming from a family of seven, where her brother was the sole breadwinner and her parents stayed at home, Shanno often felt limited by her circumstances. However, joining Azad changed everything. Through gender training and driving lessons, she found a newfound sense of independence. The program equipped her with the confidence to travel alone and the knowledge to challenge societal norms. Passing her permanent license test on the first attempt marked a significant milestone, sparking a belief in herself that she had never experienced before. Now, Shanno is eager to turn her aspirations into reality. She envisions a life where she not only earns a living but also empowers her family to dream bigger. The skills and confidence she gained have already begun to shift her family's outlook on women's roles and possibilities. Shanno dreams of exploring the world and taking her family on trips in a car, symbolizing not just mobility but also freedom and progress. Her story is a testament to the transformative power of opportunity, where one woman's courage can lead to the empowerment of an entire family.

Rihana Khatun's life changed when a friend introduced her to the Azad Foundation, offering her a chance to fulfill her aspirations. Coming from a family of four, with a husband who works as a driver and two young children, Rihana longed to do more than watch from the passenger seat. Azad's training program opened the door to a world of possibilities, transforming her from a mere passenger into a confident driver. Achieving her Permanent License in record time filled her with immense pride and a sense of freedom she had never known before.

Now, Rihana envisions a future filled with exploration and shared adventures.

Her husband supports her ambitions wholeheartedly, eager for them to pursue the driving profession side by side. Her children, especially excited by their mother's new skills, dream of the many trips they'll take together, both within and beyond Delhi—trips their father had never taken them on. For Rihana, driving is more than a profession; it's a pathway to new experiences and memories for her family, signifying the start of a journey towards empowerment and boundless possibilities.

Mehnaaz's life changed when she learned about the Azad Foundation through a friend. In her family of four, her father passed away a year ago due to illness, leaving her brother to work in a factory to support the household, while her mother took care of the home. Despite the challenges, her mother always supported her wholeheartedly, ensuring that she would never have to depend on anyone else. After joining Azad, she overcame her fears and gained confidence. The gender training exposed her to the harsh realities of discrimination in society, something she was previously unaware of.

Securing her Permanent License (PL) in a very short time became her greatest joy, as it marked the beginning of a new chapter in her life. Her dream now is to improve her family's financial situation and become a pillar of support for her mother. Additionally, she is determined to resume her education, aiming not only to become a self-reliant woman but also to strengthen her family's foundation.

Kirti, a 24-year-old from Welcome, Seelampur, has faced her share of financial challenges. Coming from a family of six, which includes her parents, three sisters, and a brother, managing household expenses has never been easy, despite both her mother and father working. With an education up to the 8th grade, Kirti used to earn just ₹4,000 a month as a caregiver, which wasn't enough to meet her family's needs.

Determined to improve her situation and support her father, she decided to pursue a new path by learning to drive through Azad Foundation, a training opportunity she discovered through a friend. Her goal is to secure a better-paying job, contribute to her family's financial stability, and ensure a brighter future for them all.

Tanu, comes from a family of four, including her mother and two older sisters. While her eldest sister stays at home, her younger sister is still in school. To make ends meet, Tanu's mother runs a small shop from their home and has always encouraged her to pursue her goals.

Tanu discovered Azad through a survey, and with her mother's support, she decided to join the program. Since becoming a part of Azad, her life has taken a positive turn. She has gained the confidence to travel independently—something she had previously found challenging—and has improved her communication skills, allowing her to express herself more clearly. The gender and legal training provided by Azad have also transformed her perspective on life, making her feel more aware and empowered. One of Tanu's proudest achievements was receiving her driving license. She recalls, "It was like a dream come true for me, and I felt truly empowered the day I got my permanent license."

Tanu's ultimate dream is to provide financial support to her mother and buy a house for her with her own hard-earned money, symbolizing the independence and stability she aims to achieve. She is now employed as a chauffeur in a private firm, taking a significant step towards realizing her dreams.

Shaziya, lives with her parents, her father who is unwell, and her mother who works in document preparation to support the family. Despite the challenges, both her parents fully support her ambitions. Shaziya first learned about Azad through a survey and saw it as an opportunity to change her life.

Since joining Azad, Shaziya has experienced a newfound sense of freedom and independence. The communication training she received boosted her confidence, allowing her to express herself openly and without hesitation. She also gained the courage to travel alone, overcoming fears that once held her back. Obtaining her permanent license in a short time brought her immense joy and a sense of accomplishment. Shaziya's ultimate dream is to improve her family's financial situation, support her mother, and one day work abroad as a driver, symbolizing her desire for growth and a better future.

Nishu's determination to support her family despite numerous challenges is truly admirable. Originally from Uttar Pradesh, she now resides in Delhi with eight other family members. As the eldest, she carries a strong sense of responsibility, especially given her father's limited income. With only an 8th-grade education, finding good job opportunities can be difficult, but her drive to uplift her family has been a powerful motivator.

When Nishu learned about Azad through an outreach activity, she saw it as a chance to change her circumstances. Although she was initially hesitant and apprehensive about expressing herself, the communication classes helped her gain the confidence to speak up and articulate her thoughts. Her involvement with the Azad Foundation has been transformative, allowing her to acquire valuable skills and a sense of empowerment.

Nishu's ambition reflects her desire for independence and her commitment to building a stable future for herself and her family. She is determined to uplift her loved ones and create a better life, demonstrating a resilience that inspires those around her.

By overcoming her fears and gaining confidence through driving, Jyoti is not only improving her mobility but also challenging societal expectations. Passing her driving test on the first attempt is a huge achievement that reflects her hard work and dedication. Her desire to establish her identity and prove herself to her parents, who were in disbelief of her succeeding in driving, shows a deep longing for recognition and respect. With her newfound autonomy, she's setting the stage for a future filled with possibilities, including her dream of traveling the world. Stories like hers inspire others to believe in themselves and strive for their goals, no matter the obstacles.

Tamanna, a 21 years old woman lives with her mother, a tailor and a brother who is still pursuing his education. Tailoring, being a seasonal and unstable source of earning, it becomes daunting for her mother to muddle through the rising expenses. Despite the challenges and adversities, her mother has always been very supportive of her decisions. The scarcity and motivation together pushed her to be on a quest of becoming independent and be a pillar that her family can lean on. Discovering Azad Foundation not only opened a new avenue for her but also instilled in her a sense of freedom. Passing her driving test on the first attempt is a huge achievement that reflects her dedication and commitment to her goals. Alongside strengthening her driving skills, she was equipped with essential skills that helped her work with her apprehensions of traveling alone. The communication training she received will undoubtedly empower her to advocate for herself and navigate new opportunities, especially as she aims for employment abroad. Tamanna's aspirations to establish her identity and support her family are both ambitious and heartfelt. Her journey exemplifies how access to education and skills can open new avenues for growth and independence.

Neelam's story is one of resilience and determination. Living with her parents and daughter, she faced the difficult decision to separate from her husband due to his behavior, prioritizing her and her daughter's well-being. Seeking refuge in her parents' home highlighted her strength and commitment to creating a safer environment for her child. Despite the financial support from her parents' pension and her father's occasional work, Neelam recognized the need to contribute to the household, driven by a desire to shoulder responsibilities and support her family.

Her enrollment in the Azad Foundation, inspired by a feminist leader, marked a significant turning point. The driving skills and life skills training not only boosted her confidence but also helped her challenge societal stereotypes about women's independence. Neelam's journey is a powerful example of breaking down norms and demonstrating that women can thrive without relying on male support. Now, with her newfound confidence, she is focused on creating a better future for her daughter, emphasizing the importance of education and self-reliance. Her aspiration to make her daughter self-sufficient speaks volumes about her commitment to breaking the cycle of dependency and empowering the next generation.

Kanika's story highlights the strength and determination that often arise in challenging family situations. Living in a family where her father's poor health affected their financial stability, led to Kanika recognizing the need to shoulder the responsibilities. Her mother's dedication to caring for the family, alongside her brother's inconsistent work, adds to the complexities they face. Learning about Azad Foundation through her brother was a turning point for Kanika. Apart from honing her driving skills, she is equipped with other essential skills that would help her veer through the obstacle that she may face. The communication class has equipped her with valuable skills that will help her express herself effectively and connect with others. This newfound confidence is essential as she works toward her goal of finding a job. Kanika's dream of improving her family's financial situation and bringing happiness to her parents shows her deep sense of responsibility and love for them. Her journey is a reminder of how one person's ambition can have a profound impact on an entire family.

Ritu Rani, lives with her husband and two children. Her husband works as a driver, and together they navigate the challenges of life in a rented home. Ritu's husband has always supported her aspirations, encouraging her to pursue her dreams despite their financial limitations. Ritu learned about the Azad Foundation from a neighbor who works as a female driver. Inspired by her neighbor's journey, Ritu realized that she, too, could carve out a space for herself in the world of driving. Initially, after her marriage, she felt a sense of doubt about her abilities, thinking she might not achieve anything significant. However, witnessing a woman confidently driving a cab sparked a determination within her to pursue her own identity and independence. Joining Azad was a transformative experience for Ritu. She received diverse training, but the Sexual and Reproductive Health (SRH) training profoundly impacted her. It provided her with a deeper understanding of herself and her rights, fostering a sense of empowerment that she had never felt before. The gender training further opened her eyes to her rights as a woman, instilling in her the confidence to advocate for herself. Ritu's ultimate dream is to buy her own house and secure a job abroad as a driver. Her journey reflects her resilience and unwavering spirit to overcome societal barriers, proving that women can achieve their aspirations with determination and support. Ritu is not just pursuing a job; she is on a mission to establish her identity, empower her family, and inspire others in her community to break free from traditional constraints.

Usha, living in a household of eight members and grappling with financial difficulties, has demonstrated remarkable resilience. With her father as the sole breadwinner, making ends meet is a constant struggle for the family. Their transition from a village to Delhi in search of better opportunities speaks volumes about their determination to forge a brighter future. Usha's discovery of the Azad Foundation, through a feminist leader, marked a significant turning point in her life. This opportunity has been transformative, allowing her to gain confidence and express herself more freely. Overcoming her initial timidity, Usha achieved a significant milestone by passing her driving license test on her first attempt—a testament to her dedication and passion for driving. The skills Usha acquired at Azad are invaluable. From understanding routes to addressing gender discrimination, these lessons have empowered her to navigate her environment with newfound confidence. Particularly impactful was the reproductive health class, which taught her the importance of self-love and self-worth. Usha's dream is to support her parents and demonstrate her capabilities to the world. Her journey is a powerful testament to the strength of her ambition and her belief that, with the right support and determination, anyone can break barriers and achieve their goals. Usha's story is not just about personal growth; it's about inspiring others to believe in their potential and strive for a better life.

Kamlesh, lives with her parents and sister in a modest household where every day is a struggle to make ends meet. Her father is the sole bread earner with a vegetable cart, promising a meagre income that isn't enough to fulfil their dreams or secure a better future. Despite these challenges, Kamlesh has always harboured aspirations for a brighter life, yearning for opportunities that could lead her family to a more stable and comfortable existence. Discovering Azad Foundation through community survey, it sparked a hope within her. Intrigued by the chance to learn valuable skills and become self-reliant, Kamlesh decided to take a leap of faith and join Azad only to step into a world imparting a sense of confidence and empowerment. Alongside mastering her driving skills, the self defense class had a major impact on her. The timid girl who once hesitated to step out alone was now standing tall, brimming with the confidence to defend herself and express her thoughts. The training at Azad extended far beyond physical skills, transforming her mindset, helping her understand that her circumstances didn't have to dictate her future. She gained insights on gender equality, effective communication and navigation skills. Kamlesh now dreams of achieving more than just a modest life—she envisions a home where her family can finally experience the comfort and stability they have always lacked. Determined to turn this dream into reality, she plans to secure a job and save diligently to buy a house in her name. Her journey is a testament to the power of resilience and the belief that dreams can indeed be transformed into reality.

Muskan, the eldest of four sisters, grew up in a family where survival was a daily struggle. Her mother worked as a domestic helper, and her father sold shoes to make ends meet. Feeling a deep responsibility to improve her family's circumstances, Muskan was determined to pursue her dreams, despite societal pressures questioning whether girls should venture beyond their homes. Her life took a new turn when she discovered Azad Foundation through an outreach activity conducted by a feminist leader. Intrigued by the possibility of learning new skills, Muskan decided to join the program, embarking on a journey of self-discovery and growth. Previously unfamiliar with the roads beyond her neighbourhood, the training empowered her to navigate independently and explore new places with confidence. Earning her permanent license in a short period brought immense joy to her family. It was more than just a document; it symbolised progress and a step toward a brighter future. Muskan's transformation was not solely about acquiring driving skills; it was about breaking barriers and challenging the norms that had restricted girls like her for so long. Her dream is to secure a job and help improve her family's financial situation, making her parents proud. Muskan wants to prove that, with determination and the right support, girls can achieve great things. Ready to create her own path and fulfil her aspirations, she aims to inspire others to break free from societal limitations and pursue their dreams.

Radhika, lives in a close-knit family of three, supported by her father, a mechanic, and her mother, a homemaker, who have always encouraged her to pursue her dreams and challenge traditional expectations placed on girls. Radhika's life took a transformative turn when she learned about Azad through a survey conducted by a feminist leader. Previously, travelling alone felt like a distant reality; she relied heavily on her parents for transportation, and the thought of stepping out independently was unnerving. However, joining Azad empowered her to leave those fears behind and carve a path of freedom and self-belief. The training sessions had a significant impact, helping her overcome her anxiety about navigating the city alone and instilling a surge of confidence that had previously eluded her. Alongside driving, Radhika learned about gender discrimination, which opened her eyes to the inequalities women face. The self-defense class marked a crucial step toward her self-reliance. She sees her eagerness to secure employment as an opportunity to honour her family for their unwavering support. Her journey exemplifies the spirit of determination and transformation, showcasing how empowerment can pave the way for a brighter future.

Gulbsha's life is a daily struggle with her ailing father and younger sister, she is no stranger to hardship. Her father, who suffers from liver disease due to years of substance abuse, is unable to work. With no steady source of income, the family has been surviving on meagre savings. Her younger sister stays at home, taking care of their father and managing household chores. Unfortunately, the family's financial situation has made it impossible to afford proper medical treatment for him, and he relies on medication taken at home. Gulbsha's journey took a hopeful turn when she heard about Azad through a microphone announcement. Intrigued by the opportunity for skill development and empowerment, she decided to join the program. She quickly obtained her permanent license, which significantly boosted her self-confidence. The training sessions at Azad offered more than just driving skills—they provided a sense of purpose and resilience. Among all the training she received, the self-defence classes had the most profound impact on her. For the first time, she felt that she wasn't vulnerable just because she was alone. She gained the confidence to protect herself and make decisions independently. Now, Gulbsha is determined to secure a job and use her earnings to resume her and her sister's education. Her dream is to not only improve their financial situation but also to break the cycle of hardship. She wants to empower herself and her sister with the education and skills needed to build a better future. Gulbsha's story is one of courage, resilience, and the belief that even in the toughest circumstances, a person can rise and change the course of their life.

Savita, navigates the challenges of life with remarkable resilience, drawing strength from both joy and sorrow. Living in a family of five, including her mother and siblings, she has faced significant hardships, including the heartbreaking loss of one of her brothers. With her brother working in a factory and her mother receiving a modest pension, financial stability has been a constant struggle. Before joining the Azad Foundation, Savita dedicated herself to childcare and cooking, prioritizing her family's needs above all else. However, a yearning for a different life drove her to seek new skills that could improve her circumstances.

Getting to know about Azad was an opportunity for Savita. With a keen willingness to learn, she embraced the training opportunities offered, and particularly she enjoyed the communication sessions that taught her the value of listening and articulating her views. Her dedication paid off when she earned her permanent license on the very first attempt. Now employed at Big Basket, Savita's journey stands as a powerful testament to her ambition and determination. She dreams of achieving success not only for herself but also for inspiring others to pursue their goals. Through her story, Savita proves that it is possible to rise above challenges and create a brighter future, instilling hope in those who may be facing similar struggles.

 says, Pushpa

Pushpa, is an energetic and dedicated individual whose passion for helping others shines through in everything she does. In her free time, she enjoys watching television and dreams of travelling to Kedarnath, a place that holds special appeal for her. With a love for shopping, she embraces life's joys but has little patience for negativity, firmly standing against anyone who speaks poorly to her. Her journey toward empowerment took a transformative turn when she learned about the Azad Foundation through a Nukkad Natak performance in her community.

Before joining Azad, Pushpa worked in a factory, but she yearned for more—specifically, the opportunity to learn to drive and gain new experiences. After completing her training with the foundation, she secured a position at Even Cargo, marking a significant milestone in her career. Embracing the philosophy that "success is a journey, not a destination," Pushpa continues to pursue her dreams with determination, inspiring others in her community to follow their paths and strive for their goals.

Before joining Azad, Renu was primarily a homemaker, immersed in daily chores with little opportunity to venture beyond her home. Her experience at Azad has been transformative; she has stepped out of her routine, met new people, and attended various events that broadened her perspective. Through her training, she learned about gender issues and reproductive health, igniting her desire for independence and success. Renu values honesty and possesses strong communication skills, which she leverages in her personal and professional life. Passionate about cooking, she is determined to earn her income, seeking not just financial stability but also the respect of her family, as she envisions providing a better life for her children through her hard work.

Priya, lives with her parents and siblings. They rely on their father's income as a carpenter for the day to day expenses. Before joining the Azad Foundation, Priya was a homemaker, seeking an opportunity to learn new skills and gain independence. Her journey began when she learned about Azad through a friend, and she quickly recognized it as a pivotal moment in her life. Reflecting on her experience, Priya feels empowered and confident, affirming that joining Azad was one of her best decisions.

At Azad, Priya particularly enjoyed the Self-Defense and First Aid classes, which not only equipped her with essential skills but also taught her the importance of caring for others. This training has significantly boosted her self-esteem, enabling her to engage with new people and forge friendships. Priya is passionate about music and dreams of building a successful life for herself, aiming to earn well and contribute positively to her family's future. Her story is a testament to her ambition and the transformative power of education and empowerment through the Azad Foundation.

Shagun, lives with her young son, mother, and brother in Gautam Puri. She got married in 2021, hoping for a bright future, but the reality was far from what she had envisioned. Initially, her married life seemed promising, but it soon took a dark turn as her husband became abusive. After enduring the pain and suffering, Shagun made the brave decision to leave her husband and return to her mother's home. Despite her circumstances, Shagun's spirit was not broken. Determined to support her family both financially and emotionally, she sought opportunities for a better life. It was during this challenging time that she came to know Azad Foundation through her cousin's sister, who introduced her to the Women with Wheels (WWW) program. Seeing this as a chance to secure a better future for herself and her son, Shagun took the courageous step to join. At Azad, Shagun's journey of empowerment truly began where she not only learned essential driving skills but also participated in classes such as Self-Defense, Communication, English, and First Aid. The self-defense training taught her how to stand up for her rights and protect herself, while the communication and English classes improved her ability to interact confidently with others. With the unwavering support of her trainer, she successfully passed her driving test, marking a significant milestone in her journey. Each achievement brought her closer to her dream of becoming a professional driver. She is now working as a chauffeur with a cab company.

Poonam Nanda, lives in Deoli with her husband and three children. Her husband earns from a private job, which barely covers the family's basic needs. To make ends meet Poonam also works as a caregiver. Poonam learned about the Azad Foundation from a colleague who was passionate about empowering women. Intrigued by the foundation's mission to train women as professional drivers she decided to join. Initially, Poonam's husband supported her decision, seeing the potential benefits of her training. However, as time passed and influenced by his family's traditional views, he began to oppose her involvement with Azad. However, Poonam remained resolute in her decision. At Azad, Poonam received comprehensive training that transformed her life. She not only learned essential driving skills and acquired her driving licence but also participated in workshops on gender rights, self-defense, communication, and first aid. This training significantly boosted her confidence and expanded her knowledge, empowering her to fight for her rights and advocate for other women in her community. Poonam's ultimate goal is to create her own identity and become self-reliant, free from dependence on anyone. She dreams of raising her children to be good citizens, instilling in them the values of hard work, resilience, and independence. By paving her own path and overcoming the obstacles in her way, Poonam hopes to provide her children with a brighter future where they can chase their dreams without limitations.

Meera Devi, lives with her two children. After her husband passed away in 2019, Meera faced significant hardships, working as a domestic helper and earning only ₹5,000 a month. This income was far from sufficient to secure a stable future for her family. However, her life took a turn when a relative told her about the Azad Foundation, an organization that empowers women through training and employment opportunities. Despite feeling nervous and inexperienced, Meera decided to join Azad. Her journey was not without its challenges. She failed her driving test three times, and though discouraged, she found strength in her children and the unwavering support of her trainers. Determined to overcome these obstacles, Meera persevered and eventually passed the test, a victory that not only gave her confidence but also taught her the value of resilience. At Azad, Meera gained much more than driving skills. She learned about her rights, improved her communication abilities, and became more assertive in advocating for herself and her family. Now, she dreams of securing a stable job, providing her children with a quality education, and one day owning a home for them.

Seema, lives in an urban village with her family. She is a mother of four children—three daughters and one son. Faced with the heavy burden of supporting her family, Seema initially worked as a rag-picker to contribute to the household income. However, this was not enough to secure a stable future for her children. Her sister introduced her to the Azad Foundation and its Women with Wheels (WWW) program, which provides driving lessons and training for women. Inspired by her sister's success at Azad and her subsequent job at Sakha, Seema saw this as a transformative opportunity to improve her life and provide better support for her children.

Without informing her family, Seema began attending Azad Foundation's classes, which covered topics like Gender Equality, Communication, English, and First Aid. These classes were life-changing, teaching her valuable skills, such as how to communicate confidently and present herself better. Though she faced challenges, including failing her driving test at first, Seema didn't give up. With the encouragement of her children and trainer, she persisted and eventually passed the test, securing her driving license. Now, Seema is determined to use her earnings to provide her family with a comfortable life. She dreams of giving her children access to a good education and better opportunities.

Pushpa Varma, lives in Madanpur Khadar with her mother and brother, who works as a carpenter. Despite her family's modest income, Pushpa always aspired to do more for herself and her loved ones. She learned about the Azad Foundation through a mobile operation team in her area, and after visiting the Azad office, she was inspired by the women undergoing training. Realizing she too could create her own identity and transform her life, Pushpa joined the foundation. She is grateful for her mother's unwavering support in joining Azad. Pushpa's ultimate goal is to build a secure future for her family and to prove that women can break barriers and thrive in male-dominated fields.

At Azad, Pushpa received a variety of training, which broadened her knowledge and reshaped her perspective. She learned essential skills like understanding road signs, self-protection, and gained a deeper awareness of the societal discrimination and violence women face. This training significantly boosted her confidence, helping her navigate challenges both on the road and within her family. Now with her driver's license, Pushpa drives fearlessly and is working as a professional cab driver.

Rupa, lives in Madanpur Khadar with her family and has studied up to the 10th standard. Initially, her parents and her husband's elder brother were against her learning to drive, believing that driving was only for men.

Despite these objections, Rupa's husband supported her aspirations, and with his encouragement, she joined the Azad Foundation's Women with Wheels (WWW) program.

At Azad, Rupa received crucial training, not only in driving but in communication skills, English, gender equality, reproductive health, women's rights, self-defense, and first aid. These classes were transformative for her personal growth and vital for job security. Through them, she learned to communicate effectively, protect herself, and realize that women are just as capable as men in any field. Her journey wasn't easy—Rupa failed her driving test five times, and each failure left her feeling disappointed. However, the encouragement and solidarity she received kept her going. Now with her driving license in hand, she is working as a chauffeur with Sakha. Her goal is not only to become financially independent but also to support her family's emotional and financial needs, showing them that women can break barriers and lead with strength and resilience.

Rashmi Goutam, resides in Uttam Nagar, West Delhi, with her parents and younger sister. Growing up in a modest household, Rashmi's father receives a pension that covers their family's basic expenses. While they manage, Rashmi always aspired for more. Her journey toward empowerment began when she learned about the Azad Foundation through a friend. Intrigued by the opportunity to gain skills and become financially independent, Rashmi eagerly joined the WWW training program. At Azad, she underwent comprehensive training that transformed her life. The self-defense classes instilled in her the ability to protect herself and others from violence, which was both empowering and liberating. Meanwhile, communication training helped her express herself clearly and confidently, equipping her with the tools to convey her thoughts effectively. With her permanent driving license now in hand, Rashmi is focused on completing her additional training and finding employment. Driven by her dreams, Rashmi envisions taking full responsibility for her family's financial well-being. She is determined to work hard, support her loved ones, and carve out a brighter future for herself and her family.

Neha Kumari, resides with her mother and brother. Her mother works tirelessly in a private job to support the family. Neha first learned about the Azad Foundation from her mother, but it was a local worker who truly inspired her to join. Excited about the possibilities, Neha felt a renewed sense of purpose upon joining Azad.

At Azad, Neha engaged in various types of training, including gender studies, communication skills, and self-defense. The self-defense classes were particularly transformative; they not only taught her how to protect herself but also how to assist others in need. Neha's communication skills improved significantly, empowering her to express herself effectively and influence those around her with her words. With dedication and hard work, Neha obtained her permanent driving license and now confidently navigates the roads. Her dream is to achieve self-reliance through a fulfilling job and carve out her own identity in society. Neha aspires to become a successful female driver, paving the way for other women and inspiring them to pursue their dreams.

Rajni Kaintura, at 35 years found herself at crossroads, married and raising two children while yearning for something more in her life. The turning point in Rajni's journey came when her husband, a dedicated driver, shared an inspiring encounter. During a trip to Jaipur, he had seen a woman driving confidently on the roads, breaking the norms of traditional gender roles. This experience ignited a spark within him, and he encouraged Rajni to explore similar opportunities for herself. Motivated by his support and the desire for independence, Rajni decided to reach out to the Azad Foundation. At Azad, Rajni immersed herself in various training sessions that not only focused on driving but also encompassed essential life skills. She learned about gender awareness, self-defence, communication, and English, gaining a holistic education that would serve her both personally and professionally. The comprehensive training not only enhanced her practical skills but also significantly boosted her confidence and knowledge. Through the self-defence classes, she discovered the strength within her to protect herself and stand up against societal norms that had previously constrained her. The communication workshops helped her express herself clearly and effectively, empowering her to make independent decisions. As she progressed through the program, Rajni began to understand the importance of living freely and recognizing her rights as a woman. The newfound knowledge and skills became her stepping stones toward self-reliance. She obtained her permanent driving license, marking a significant milestone in her journey of empowerment. Now, she dreams of creating her own identity and contributing to her family's financial stability. She aspires to work with Sakha and eventually become a driver for DTC.

Krishna, a resilient woman, lives with her two children. Their life hasn't been easy—her husband no longer lives with them, leaving Krishna as the sole provider for her family. With a modest monthly income of ₹5,000, managing their household seemed like an uphill battle. However, the Ram Mohan Scholarship provided by Azad has been a crucial lifeline, helping to cover basic living expenses and easing some of the financial pressure. Krishna's journey with Azad began through a conversation with a friend. Encouraged by the stories of empowerment she heard, she decided to visit Azad's office. This visit became a turning point in her life, opening doors to opportunities she had never imagined. At Azad, she received comprehensive training, learning not only how to drive but also essential life skills in gender awareness, self-defense, communication, and English. These courses did more than just impart knowledge—they instilled a sense of confidence in Krishna, enabling her to step out of her home and pursue her dreams. One of her greatest achievements so far has been obtaining her permanent driving license. Krishna's aspirations reach beyond the road. She dreams of one day buying a house for her family, a place they can call their own. Living in a rented space has always been a challenge, and the thought of providing a stable, permanent home for her children motivates her to keep pushing forward. Krishna knows the road ahead won't be easy, but with each mile she covers during her training, she gets closer to her goal.

Neera, a resident of Sangam Vihar, lives with her husband, a bus driver, and their three children. Her husband earns ₹22,000 a month, which sustains their household, but Neera has always wanted to contribute more meaningfully to her family. Married at the young age of 16, her education was interrupted, leaving her with unfulfilled dreams. Her journey with Azad began when she was introduced to the organization by a mobiliser, who saw potential in her. Inspired and excited by the opportunity to learn and grow, Neera joined the program.

At Azad, Neera underwent comprehensive training that extended far beyond driving. She received crucial lessons in gender issues, women's rights, and effective communication. These sessions not only boosted her confidence but also empowered her to express her views more openly within her family—a significant shift from her previous reticent nature. Visits to different institutes broadened her understanding of the world, giving her valuable knowledge of exit routes and helping her sharpen her driving skills. Neera's husband has been a pillar of support throughout her journey, fully encouraging her to complete her training and pursue her ambitions. With her permanent license in hand, she is eagerly preparing for her next chapter: starting her job and becoming a professional driver.

Nisha, is vibrant young girl whose father is an auto driver, and he is the sole earner of the family. Nisha first came across Azad through a trainer who was conducting outreach in her area. The trainer explained that Azad offers driving training for women, along with job opportunities upon completion. Intrigued and eager to change her circumstances, Nisha decided to join. While her mother has been supportive of her decision, her father insists she should get married instead of pursuing her career dreams. Despite this pressure, her dedication towards training remained unwavered. At Azad, Nisha received extensive training, which not only improved her driving skills but also bolstered her self-confidence. She learned about gender issues and societal challenges that women face and how to overcome these barriers through effective communication and self-defense techniques. The training helped her confront her fears and shed her hesitations, empowering her to drive with confidence. Now, with her permanent license in hand, Nisha is eager to start working and carve out a new path for herself. Her dream is to become a skilled driver, earn a stable income for herself and her family, and make a positive impact in society. Nisha is determined to prove her worth, overcome societal expectations, and build a successful career on her own terms.

Jyoti Rani, lives with her mother, father, three brothers, uncle, and two children of her brother. The family faces significant financial difficulties, with no steady employment among them. During her 12th-grade studies, Jyoti's grandfather fell ill, and the family returned to their village, causing her to miss her exams and eventually abandon her studies to start working. The family faced further hardship when Jyoti's father opened a grocery shop during the lockdown to support them, and her younger brother's wife contracted tuberculosis. Due to insufficient funds for treatment, she passed away.

Determined to help her family overcome these challenges, Jyoti joined the Azad Foundation for driving training. Through non-technical training sessions in self-defense, communication, and practical driving skills, Jyoti gained confidence and valuable knowledge. Her family fully supports her endeavors, and she has successfully obtained her permanent license and have started working as a cab driver in Blue smart. Jyoti can now contribute to her family's financial stability, hoping to improve their quality of life and fulfill their unmet desires.

Lalita, resides in Madanpur Khadar with her sister and brother-in-law. After completing her 8th-grade studies, she moved from her village to Delhi in search of work. She had to leave her job and return to her village for a while, but when she returned to Delhi, her brother-in-law introduced her to the Azad Foundation's driving training program, encouraging her to join.

At Azad Foundation, Lalita received comprehensive training, including self-defense, communication, and driving skills. The self-defense classes helped her gain the confidence to protect herself and assist others. She also improved her communication skills, becoming more open with her family. The training in road signs and driving techniques prepared her for life on the road, while the gender classes educated her on women's rights and fighting against discrimination and violence. Her hard work and knowledge paid off when she could achieve her driving licence. Lalita is now ready to take on the road as a skilled driver. She has started her new innings with Blue smart as a cab driver. Her dream is to establish her own identity, achieve personal happiness, and pursue the goals she had previously set aside.

Archana, a determined woman, lives with her sister, brother-in-law, and their family. Although she is married, she no longer resides with her husband due to his lack of support and unwillingness to continue their marriage. This difficult personal experience has not held her back from seeking her own path to empowerment. Archana joined the Azad Foundation, and this decision has greatly transformed her life. Prior to this, she was calm and compliant, adhering to family expectations without question. However, through Azad's training, she gained the confidence and ability to take control of her own decisions. The program empowered her to express her opinions publicly and assert herself in various aspects of life.

Archana has also found the courage to stand up against domestic violence in her own home. She boldly raised her voice against her father's abuse of her mother, making it clear that she would no longer tolerate injustice in her life or the lives of others. The FLP (Feminist Leadership Program) inspired her to recognize her worth and develop a firm stance on fighting for her and others' rights. Motivated by Azad's program and her personal experiences, Archana is now pursuing her childhood dream of becoming a driver and is working as a professional chauffeur with Blue smart. She is determined to make a name for herself and achieve financial independence, overcoming the challenges she faced in her personal life.

Veenita, lives with her family in Madanpur Khadar, which includes her mother, father, and brother. Her father sells ice cream to support the family. She learned about Azad Foundation through a field team working in her area and, excited by the opportunity to learn driving and work as a driver, decided to join the Women with Wheels program at Azad.

Since joining, Vinita has undergone extensive training that significantly boosted her confidence and helped her overcome her hesitation. She found the self-defense and communication classes particularly inspiring. The self-defense training equipped her with the skills to protect herself and others, while the communication classes taught her how to use her words effectively to influence and engage with people. Now that she has obtained her driving license, Vinita is focused on becoming financially independent. Her goal is to support her parents through employment and ensure that she does not have to rely on anyone else for financial stability. She is currently working as a chauffeur with Blue Smart Cab Company.

Suman, lives with her family in Gautampuri, which includes her husband, daughter, and brother. Her husband is ill and unable to work, leaving the family in a difficult financial situation. Her mother and brother have stepped in to help support the household. In 2018, Suman had initially enrolled in a WWW program, but her family stopped her due to her marriage. After her marriage, her husband's illness further deteriorated their financial condition, and Suman sought a way to improve their lives. When she got another opportunity to join Azad, she was determined to make a change, not only for herself but also for her daughter's future. At Azad, Suman received comprehensive training in various subjects, which significantly boosted her confidence and broadened her knowledge. She learned about women's rights, relevant laws, and how to assert those rights. The communication training was particularly impactful, teaching her how to engage in effective conversations and influence others positively. Now, with her permanent driving license in hand, she has started to work as a professional driver. Her goal is to support her family, especially given her husband's health condition, and to create a distinct identity for herself by working with Sakha. Through her determination, she hopes to become financially independent and provide a better future for her daughter.

Aarti, lives in Sarita Vihar with her family, which consists of her father, brother, and sister. Her father has a private job, while her brother works in an organization. Despite their combined monthly income of ₹20,000, her father does not contribute to the household expenses, and her brother only provides ₹5,000. This lack of financial support motivated Aarti to join the Azad Foundation to make a positive change for herself. She learned about Azad through her brother, who informed her about the driving training and various skill-building classes offered to women, along with job placements. Eager to improve her situation, Aarti decided to enroll. At Azad, she participated in various training sessions, including communication skills, gender equality, legal rights, and English language classes, all of which significantly boosted her confidence and knowledge. Aarti particularly appreciated the self-defense training, which equipped her with skills to protect herself, instilling hope and a sense of empowerment. Now that she has obtained her permanent driving license, Aarti is sure to be successful in this career and is excited to start working. Her goal is to become a skilled driver, establish her own identity, and gain recognition by her name. Aarti's journey reflects her determination to overcome obstacles and create a better future for herself.

Pooja, a determined young woman, lives in a household of six. Her mother, who repairs fans, and her father, a painter, work hard to contribute to their modest monthly family income of ₹23,000. Despite the financial challenges, Pooja never let her circumstances dictate her future. She was always on the lookout for ways to become independent and contribute to her family's well-being. One day, during a local survey, Pooja learned about Azad, an organization offering women a chance to learn driving and gain skills that could lead to better opportunities. Intrigued by the idea of becoming self-reliant, she discussed it with her mother, who wholeheartedly supported her decision. Encouraged by her mother's belief in her, Pooja enrolled in the training program at Azad. At Azad, Pooja's life began to change. The various trainings she received—on topics like advocating for her rights, self-defense, and effective communication—transformed her mindset. She learned how to express herself without fear, and the English classes gave her the confidence to speak up, helping her overcome the hesitation that had once held her back. The day Pooja received her permanent driving license was a proud moment. No longer just a dreamer, she was now a confident young woman with the skills to drive her own future. Pooja's dreams didn't stop at driving. She aspired to achieve financial independence and create an identity for herself.

Tara, a determined young woman from an urban village of south Delhi grew up in a family of seven, where her parents work as laborers, earning ₹15,000 a month. Though her family faced financial difficulties, Tara's aspirations went beyond her immediate circumstances. One day, inspired by a neighbor who confidently drove a car, Tara inquired about how she had learned and was introduced to Azad's Women With Wheels training program. Motivated by the possibility of gaining independence, Tara visited the Azad office, where she enrolled in the program and began her training. At Azad, she experienced a transformation that went beyond learning how to drive. The various trainings she received—from understanding road signs and English communication to learning about her rights, self-defense, and reproductive health—gave her a new sense of confidence and empowerment. With a permanent driving license now in hand, Tara drives confidently, knowing she has the skills to pursue her dreams. She no longer sees herself as limited by her family's financial situation. Arfa Swaleha, in the narrow lanes of Nardan Basti, Lal Kuan, Arfa Swaleha grew up in a family of four, where her mother worked as an Anganwadi worker and her two brothers as a chef and a laborer. Their combined monthly income of ₹15,000 left little room for comfort. In her conservative Muslim neighborhood, where women rarely ventured beyond their homes, Arfa harbored a deep desire to learn, grow, and contribute to her family's well-being. Her opportunity arrived when a local mobilizer from Azad offered driving courses and job opportunities exclusively for women. After discussing it with her family, and with her mother's strong support, Arfa joined Azad. There, she received more than driving lessons—she was trained in self-defense, communication, and women's rights, gaining the confidence to stand up for herself and others. Each driving session helped her shed self-doubt, and when she earned her permanent license, it symbolized much more than a qualification—it marked her entry into a new, independent life. Now, Arfa dreams of securing a stable job, supporting her family, and showing the women in her community that they, too, can break free from the constraints of tradition and carve their own paths.

Sapna, in the bustling lanes of Madanpur Khadar, lives with her family in a small rented house. Her mother works as a house cleaner, her father at a CNG pump, and her sister is still in school. Life wasn't easy with the family's limited income, but Sapna always dreamed of doing something to support her loved ones. One day, a friend who had completed driving training at Azad told Sapna about the opportunity. Intrigued and eager for change, Sapna visited the Azad office and enrolled. At Azad, she received far more than driving lessons. Training in English communication, self-defense, and reproductive health transformed her outlook. She learned to navigate the roads, read signs, and, most importantly, move confidently in spaces she had once feared. With her permanent driving license in hand, Sapna is now driving on the roads, filled with determination. Her goal is clear: to become a skilled driver, stand on her own feet, and support her family. She dreams of building her own house in Delhi one day, turning her aspirations into reality.

Her dream is to become a skilled driver and work with the Delhi Transport Corporation (DTC) so she can support her family and inspire other women to chase their dreams. Deepika's story reflects her resilience and the courage to challenge societal norms. With each drive, she is not just navigating the roads; she is paving the way for herself and others. Her journey serves as an inspiring reminder that with determination and the right support, women can break barriers and achieve their aspirations.

Roli, lives in a joint family with her husband who works as a driver, and four other family members. Their household has a monthly income of ₹15,000 which barely fulfills their daily expenses. She learned about Azad through a mobiliser and, driven by her passion for driving, talked to her family about joining. With her husband's encouragement, she decided to enroll in the women with wheels program. At Azad, Roli gained confidence and faced her fears through various training sessions. She learned about road signs, communication skills, gender issues, and women's rights. This training not only enhanced her driving abilities but also empowered her to stand up for herself and advocate for others. Now that she has her permanent driving license, Roli drives regularly, determined to succeed despite limited support from her in-laws. Her husband remains her strongest ally in pursuing her ambitions. Roli dreams of becoming a skilled driver, achieving independence, and creating her own identity in society.

She learned about Azad through a Mobilisation team who did survey in their locality. After knowing all about the women with wheels training program she felt thrilled about the opportunity to become self-reliant through driving.

Upon joining Azad, Laxmi received comprehensive training in various areas, including route navigation, communication, women's rights, self-defense, and English. This training significantly boosted her confidence and equipped her with the skills needed to advocate for herself and others. She learned how to navigate independently and protect herself. With the support of her family, Laxmi quickly obtained her permanent driving license and is now practicing driving on the road. Her dream is to complete her training, achieve self-reliance, and contribute to her family's well-being. Laxmi aspires to work with Sakha, demonstrating that women can accomplish anything and build their own identities.

Abhilasha, lives with her family in Subhash Camp, South Delhi. The household consists of her mother, father, one brother, and one sister. Their family income is ₹12,000 per month, with her father working in a private job. Unfortunately, he struggles with substance abuse and has been violent towards her mother, making the home environment challenging. Abhilasha's elder sister is disabled, and her mother is the family's sole supporter. Despite her passion for dancing, Abhilasha faces restrictions from her father, who believes that women should stay home and handle household chores. However, after discovering Azad, she saw an opportunity to gain independence.

At Azad, Abhilasha has participated in various training programs that have significantly boosted her confidence and knowledge. She learned about road safety, communication, and English, which have empowered her to travel alone, understand her rights, and express herself more freely. Now equipped with her permanent driving license, Abhilasha is eager to complete her driving training and secure a job. Her goal is to support herself and her mother financially, reduce her mother's workload, and gain the independence she desires.

Rita Devi, a mother of four, is the sole provider of her family. Life took a challenging turn a year ago when her husband passed away. With a modest income of just ₹5,000 from her job at an export company, Rita found herself struggling to make ends meet. One day, during a local survey in her area, Rita learned about Azad, an organization offering scooter training and employment opportunities for women. This was the chance she had been waiting for—an opportunity not just to earn more but to reclaim control over her life and secure a future for her children.

At Azad, Rita received much more than just scooter training. She was introduced to gender studies, self-defence, and communication skills, which empowered her in ways she hadn't imagined. She began to assert herself, confidently speaking up for her needs and those of her children. After months of hard work and dedication, Rita earned her permanent driving license. Now, she stands ready to embark on the next phase of her journey—beginning a new job that will allow her to provide for her family with dignity and pride. But for Rita, this is just the beginning. Her dream is to build a home of her own through her hard work, a place where her children can grow up safe and secure. With each passing day, she gets closer to realizing that dream, driven by her unshakeable will and love for her family.

Prerna's household consists of her mother, father, and two brothers. Her father works as a labourer, while her mother has a private job, contributing to the family's livelihood. Prerna's journey towards empowerment began when she learned about Azad through a survey. The organization's commitment to women's empowerment and their driving courses caught her attention. Encouraged by her mother, she decided to enrol in the 2W training program, seeing it as a chance to gain independence and skills.

At Azad, Prerna received comprehensive training that not only enhanced her driving abilities but also boosted her confidence and broadened her understanding of crucial social issues. She learned about women's rights, family discrimination, and the laws about violence, which opened her eyes to the challenges many women face. Additionally, the communication training helped her overcome her hesitation, enabling her to express her views with clarity and confidence. Now equipped with a permanent license, Prerna is ready to embark on her professional journey. She rides a scooter independently. Her dreams are ambitious; she aspires to secure a job, buy a car, and ultimately build her own house, paving the way for a brighter future.

Aashu, lives with her mother, father, and two brothers. The financial condition of the family is not very good, hence Ashu always wanted to start working and contribute to her family income. Aashu's journey toward empowerment began when she learned about Azad from an FLP leader, who shared information about the 2W training program and job opportunities for women. Excited by the chance to gain new skills and the promise of employment within four months, Aashu decided to join Azad. Her family fully supports her decision, and she feels a renewed sense of empowerment and independence.

At Azad, Aashu particularly valued the training in gender issues and self-defence. These lessons not only equipped her with practical skills but also addressed critical concerns about women's safety and the importance of speaking out against molestation. Now, with her permanent license in hand, Aashu is ready to enter the workforce. Her dream is to financially support her family and ultimately build her own house through her hard work, creating a secure and comfortable life for herself and her loved ones.

Tamanna's husband, a tailor, and their three children live in an urban village in south Delhi. With a meagre monthly family income they struggle to make ends meet. Tamanna first learned about Azad through a friend associated with the organization. Recognizing the financial strain on her husband, who is the sole breadwinner, she saw Azad as a key opportunity to improve their situation and secure a better future for their children's education. At Azad, Tamanna received a range of training that empowered her to become more confident and independent. She especially appreciated the gender and communication classes, which helped her express herself more clearly. The English lessons also proved useful for her future prospects. She could also acquire her permanent licence in the first attempt. Now, with her permanent license in hand, she is working as a delivery partner in an e-commerce industry. Her dream is to earn more, improve her family's financial situation, and provide her children with a quality education.

Pammi's journey through Azad truly reflects her resilience and determination. Coming from a family of eight with a limited monthly income, financial stability was always a concern. However, when the mobile operation team introduced her to Azad, she embraced the opportunity for change. At Azad, she not only learned how to ride a scooter—starting from not even knowing how to ride a bicycle—but she also gained the confidence and independence to make her own decisions. The communication and self-defense training especially empowered her, helping her to overcome her fears and express herself openly.

Now, with her permanent license in hand, Pammi is ready to step into the workforce, eager to contribute to her family's financial stability and to take significant steps towards her dream of independence. Her story is a powerful reminder of how access to the right tools and knowledge can transform lives, allowing individuals to break free from limitations and shape their own futures.

Naina, 24-year-old lives with her mother, brother, and sister. She comes from a family where managing daily expenses was also a matter of challenge. When she learned about Azad through the mobilization team, she saw it as an opportunity to break free from her circumstances and build a better future for her and her family. Driven by the desire to become self-reliant, Naina enrolled in Azad's driving program.

In Azad, Naina received more than just driving lessons. The comprehensive training covered gender equality, legal rights, reproductive health, communication skills, English, and first aid—transforming her understanding of herself and the world around her. This knowledge gave Naina the confidence she had been lacking, empowering her to speak up, make informed decisions, and assert her rights. She mastered road signs, navigated confidently using Google Maps, and learned to handle a scooter on the busy streets. With her permanent license, Naina is no longer just a trainee—she's ready to step into the workforce and take control of her future. Naina envisions herself driving a car with her mother and sister, taking them on joyrides that symbolize their collective journey toward better days.

Sanjana, lives surrounded by the love and support of her family, which includes her parents, two brothers, and one sister. While their home is filled with affection, the family often struggles to make ends meet. When Sanjana learned about Azad from a mobilizer, she felt an immediate spark of curiosity. Intrigued by the WWW program and the two-wheeler training, she eagerly visited the office with a friend, excited to explore the possibilities that lay ahead. At Azad, she embarked on a transformative journey, receiving comprehensive training in driving, gender issues, law, reproductive health, communication, English, and first aid. This multifaceted training not only boosted her confidence but also expanded her knowledge in areas she had never considered before. Sanjana particularly thrived in the communication and English classes, where she learned to articulate her thoughts. As she honed her practical skills, Sanjana mastered the essentials of driving, such as understanding road signs and using Google Maps. With determination, she practised until she could navigate the bustling streets with confidence. Now, with her permanent license in hand, she stands ready to embrace the opportunities that await her in the workforce. Sanjana's goal is clear: to help her family financially and achieve her dream of buying a scooter for herself. With each step she takes, she moves closer to not only fulfilling her aspirations but also lifting her family toward a more secure future. Her journey is a testament to resilience and the power of education, proving that with the right support and determination, dreams can indeed become a reality.

Payal's journey is a story of determination and growth. Living with her mother and siblings, she faced financial difficulties with a family income of just ₹12,000, which was insufficient to meet their needs. Despite the challenges, Payal found hope when she learned about Azad from a mobiliser. Encouraged by a friend, she decided to join the 2-wheeler training program, marking the beginning of a transformative experience. At Azad, Payal received more than just driving lessons. She also got aware of the gender issues, law, reproductive health, communication, English, and first aid. These lessons empowered her, building her confidence and giving her the tools to navigate a world she once felt intimidated by. What stood out most to her were the communication and English classes, which helped her overcome her hesitation in speaking and improved her sentence formation. Kajal, lives with her family in the urban village of Madanpur Khadar, which includes her parents, three sisters, and one brother. Her father, a salesman, and her mother, who runs a shop, together earn an income of ₹15,000, which is insufficient to meet the needs of their large family. Kajal first learned about Azad from a woman who had trained there before. After receiving contact details from her, Kajal reached out, and soon, the Azad team visited her family. Understanding the opportunities Azad offered, Kajal's father encouraged her to join the 2 Wheelers training program.

At Azad, Kajal learnt the technical skill of riding a 2 wheeler and also benefited from various classes that included gender issues, law, communication, English, self-defense, and first aid. These trainings expanded her knowledge and significantly boosted her confidence. She gained insights into women's rights, honed her communication skills, and learned to express her views more clearly. Self-defense training empowered her to protect herself and others, helping her overcome the fear of venturing out alone. Now with her permanent license in hand, Kajal drives confidently on her own and is ready to start working. Her dream is to secure a stable job, become self-reliant, support her family, and build her own identity.

Sita, lives with her family in Lalkuan, Badarpur, which includes her parents, one brother, and one sister. The family's monthly income is ₹15,000, which makes it challenging to meet their needs. She first heard about Azad through an FLP leader and, after discussing it with her family, decided to join the scooty training program. Sita is determined to challenge the traditional belief that only sons are responsible for supporting the family and prove that a daughter can equally take on this role.

At Azad, Sita received training in gender issues, law, self-defense, communication, and road signs. These classes not only expanded her knowledge but also significantly boosted her confidence. She particularly enjoyed the communication class, which helped improve her speaking skills, and the gender training, which opened her eyes to her rights and the discrimination women face. Sita now confidently expresses her views within her family, something she struggled with before. Having obtained her permanent license, Sita is eager to start working. Her dream is to become self-reliant and support her family through her own efforts, breaking stereotypes and proving her capabilities.

Lakshmi, after obtaining her permanent license, began driving on Jaipur's busy main roads. This experience provided her with valuable insights into the city's traffic patterns. Her family, particularly her father, a rickshaw puller, has been very supportive. They are a family of three, with her younger sister still in school. She manages household chores before attending training, as she aims to secure a job through this program to improve their financial situation.

Laxmi learned about Azad through a survey conducted in their locality. Initially, travelling alone was challenging for her, but she adjusted after 15-20 days. She has gained confidence in speaking up and has become familiar with the RTO process. Before joining Azad, she had never visited a government office on her own. The experience of obtaining her license was empowering, and she now feels more confident in expressing herself. Her dream is to become a successful driver and enhance her family's financial well-being.

Lalita, driving through Jaipur's bustling streets has been a transformative journey. Coming from a hardworking family, with her father as a street vendor and her mother as a cook, she always felt the need to uplift their financial situation. When a community survey introduced her to Azad's training program, she saw a chance to make a change.

At first, travelling alone to the training centre was daunting, but driven by her family's dreams, she pushed past her fears. Each day, navigating the crowded roads boosted her confidence. The training not only taught her driving skills and RTO procedures but also empowered her to find her voice. Her first visit to the RTO marked a turning point—standing up for herself showed her that she could advocate for her future. Now, with her driving skills honed and a clear vision in mind, Lalita is steering her family towards a brighter future, one drive at a time. Her journey is a testament to resilience and the power of community support.

Roshni Verma's journey through the busy streets of Jaipur has expanded her understanding of city traffic and her capabilities. Growing up in a supportive family, with her father, a driver, encouraging her ambitions, Roshni saw Azad's training program as a chance to secure a job and uplift her family's financial situation. The discovery came through a neighbourhood survey, sparking her decision to join despite the initial fear of travelling alone.

The training not only equipped her with driving skills but also instilled a new level of confidence, particularly through learning the RTO procedures. Her first visit to the RTO for her license was a challenging experience that significantly boosted her self-esteem, marking a shift in how she communicates and presents herself. Roshni's dream is clear: to become a successful driver and contribute to her family's well-being. Her story is one of overcoming fears, embracing new skills, and striving for a better future.

Seema, driving on Jaipur's main roads has been a transformative experience. Coming from a family of four, with her elderly parents depending on her, she balances household responsibilities with her training. Her sisters are married, leaving Seema with the primary duty of supporting her parents and managing the household.

She discovered Azad's training program through a local survey, recognizing it as a path to financial stability. The training has boosted her confidence, equipping her with driving skills and introducing her to topics like sexual and reproductive health (SRH) and gender issues, which were new to her. Armed with this knowledge, she feels empowered to help herself and others. Seema's dream is to secure a stable job, achieve financial independence, and one day purchase her own house, ensuring a better life for her family.

Sita, faced financial struggles for much of her life. With three children and a husband who works as a laborer, meeting the family's basic needs has always been challenging. Her circumstances forced her to give up her education after the 8th grade, leaving her with limited opportunities for financial independence. When she learned about Azad's driving training and job programs through a canopy setup near her area, Seeta saw it as a chance to change her family's situation. Determined to make a difference, she joined the four-wheeler training program on 17th March 2023, hoping to gain skills that could help secure a stable income.

Despite initially feeling nervous behind the wheel, Seeta's confidence grew with each training session as she learned to navigate busy roads, understand traffic rules, and perform basic vehicle maintenance. Her hard work and dedication paid off when she earned her permanent license on 31st July 2023. Now ready to start working, Seeta is not just aiming to support her family financially but also to give her children the education she was unable to complete. Her journey from hesitation to empowerment shows that with determination and the right support, it's possible to steer life in a new direction.

Priya, a young woman from Jaipur, has faced significant challenges due to her family's financial struggles. With four members in the household and her father working as a labourer, meeting daily expenses has always been difficult. This situation forced Priya to leave her education behind and look for ways to support her family. She learned about Azad's training programs from a friend, and the opportunity to gain driving skills and secure a job appealed to her. Without hesitation, she enrolled in a training program determined to change her family's circumstances.

Initially, Priya felt nervous about driving, unsure if she could navigate the roads confidently. However, with each passing day, her skills improved, and her fear gradually diminished. She proudly earned her permanent license, marking a significant milestone in her journey. Now ready to enter the workforce, Priya's dream is to secure a job and provide a better life for her family. Her story is one of courage and hope, showing that even in the face of adversity, it's possible to ride towards a brighter future with determination and hard work.

Urvashi, hails from a family of five, with her father working as a driver. Despite completing her education up to the 12th grade, she faced initial resistance from her father when she expressed her desire to join Azad Foundation for driving training. He held the belief that driving lacked respect in society and feared that people would judge her as they did him. Urvashi, however, was determined to support her family financially and convinced her mother to back her decision.

With time, her father began to accept her choice, and she started her training at Azad. This opportunity marked her first experience with driving, something she never imagined she would do. Although the practice for obtaining her Permanent License (PL) was challenging at first, the training at Azad instilled a newfound confidence in her.

Urvashi's journey has not only taught her to drive but has also equipped her to handle tasks in government offices, breaking barriers that once felt insurmountable. She has improved her communication with her father and is now actively participating in family discussions and decisions. The training has infused her life with renewed energy and purpose, helping her redefine her identity and aspirations. Urvashi's story is one of resilience, empowerment, and a commitment to change, both for herself and her family.

Sunita Devi receiving her Permanent License on October 10, 2023, was a moment of immense pride. Through Azad Foundation's "Women with Wheels" program, she acquired far more than just driving skills; she gained valuable knowledge about women's rights, self-defense, and financial literacy. This comprehensive training significantly boosted her confidence and sense of self-reliance.

Sunita's family consists of three members: her supportive father, who works as a street vendor, and her younger brother, who is still in school. Since the passing of her mother a few years ago, Sunita has taken on the responsibility of managing household chores before attending her training sessions.

Her ultimate goal is to secure a job through the skills she has acquired in the program, enabling her to improve her family's financial situation. Sunita's journey exemplifies resilience and determination as she strives to create a better future for herself and her family.

Varsha, comes from a family where everyone is engrossed in their own lives. Her family consists of eight members, including her parents, two sisters, a brother, her sister-in-law, and a 3-month-old niece. Her father and brother work as taxi drivers, while her mother and sister-in-law are homemakers. Varsha dropped out of 12th grade through an open board as she lacked interest in studies. Among her siblings, one of her elder sisters, aged 30, faced a divorce after two years of marriage and now lives with the family. Both her elder sisters are employed, and Varsha often felt the need to carve out her own identity and achieve financial independence. Varsha enrolled in the Women with Wheels (WWW) program, envisioning a future filled with confidence, freedom, and independence. She hoped the training would help her overcome her fears, especially the fear of venturing out at night. During the training, Varsha appreciated all the sessions but found the modules on Sexual and Reproductive Health (SRH) and legal rights to be the most impactful. She described the SRH training as an eye-opener, particularly the “My Body, My Choice” session, which reinforced her right to autonomy over her body, including choices about sexuality, marriage, and reproduction. The legal rights training further boosted her confidence, equipping her with the knowledge and skills to assert and enjoy her rights. Varsha dreams of becoming a successful driver through the training provided by Azad. With her siblings already earning, she aspires to prove her capabilities to her family and community by becoming an independent, self-reliant young Payal Dhanka, lives in an extended joint family. Her father works as a painter, and her mother is a homemaker. She has two brothers: the elder, 21 years old, works in a private job while pursuing his second year of college, and the younger, 14 years old, is studying in 10th grade. Payal first learned about Azad during sessions conducted in her government school. Later, the Azad survey team visited her home, encouraging her to join their training program. Inspired, Payal decided to enroll, hoping to build confidence and gain the freedom to shape her own future. Payal thoroughly enjoyed her time at Azad. She praises the faculty for their dedication and honest teaching. She valued both the technical and non-technical training programs, especially the self-defense training, which gave her a newfound sense of empowerment. She now feels confident and fearless, ready to take on any challenge. Payal dreams of becoming financially independent, capable of managing her expenses and making her own decisions. She aspires to continue her education while pursuing driving as a source of income. Determined to break free from the limitations of her circumstances, she envisions a future where she stands on her own feet, empowered and self-reliant.

 Date of Joining: 28/10/2023
 Date of PL: 12/02/2024
 Current Status: Employable

Lalita, a resident of the Jhalana area in Jaipur district, comes from a financially constrained family. Her husband runs a small cosmetic store, earning an average of Rs.10,000 per month. Lalita has three children—one son studying in 8th standard and two daughters enrolled in 7th and 3rd standards at a government school.

During a survey conducted by the Azad team, Lalita learned about the WWW (Women With Wheels) program. Inspired by the opportunity, she joined the program's training sessions and began envisioning a brighter future for herself. The training instilled in her a strong belief in becoming financially independent, earning her own identity within her family and community, and gaining autonomy over financial decisions. Reflecting on her journey, Lalita shares, "I learned a great deal from Azad, especially through the empowerment training sessions. These trainings ignited a passion in me to not only improve my life but also to support other women around me." With renewed confidence, Lalita dreams of carving a path for herself—pursuing her interests to secure a better future for her family while uplifting her community.

Komal, comes from a poor family of five members. Her father works as a farmer, earning an average of Rs.12,000 per month, while her mother is a homemaker. She has two elder brothers, aged 23 and 21. One of her brothers is a 10th-grade dropout and works as a daily wage laborer, while the other is still studying. The family struggles financially, with her father and brother working tirelessly to make ends meet.

Komal learned about Azad during a survey conducted by their team. Joining Azad was a proud moment for her, as no girl in her extended family had ever learned driving. For Komal, this opportunity symbolized a step toward self-reliance and the confidence to make informed decisions about her life. During the training, Komal found the first aid and self-defense sessions particularly impactful, alongside the technical driving lessons. She believes that additional skills, such as those taught in these trainings, are essential for safe driving—not only for the driver's benefit but also for the safety of others. These sessions equipped her with the confidence to handle unforeseen situations that could act as barriers while driving, emphasizing their importance for personal and public safety.

Komal dreams of creating her own identity and achieving financial independence. She aspires to take charge of her life, make her own decisions, and empower herself through the skills and confidence she has gained.

Raina, lives in Bhatta Basti with her husband and two children, forming a close-knit family of four. Despite the love she has for her family, Raina faces many challenges in her daily life, from financial instability to a lack of personal empowerment. Her circumstances often left her feeling restricted and uncertain about her ability to create a better future for her children. One day, Raina came across a canopy promoting the Azad Foundation's two-wheeler training program. Intrigued by the opportunity, she decided to enrol, hoping it would be a step towards changing her life.

The training program at Azad Foundation was more than just a practical course on riding a two-wheeler. It also included valuable lessons on self-defence, standing up for one's rights, and gender equality. These lessons were eye-opening for Raina, who had never before been exposed to such empowering concepts. Through her training, Raina learned to assert herself, understand her rights, and confidently navigate challenges. Earning her license marked the completion of this transformative journey. The license is more than just a permit to ride a vehicle; it represented a significant milestone in her journey toward independence. The confidence Raina gained from the program was transformative. She now saw possibilities where there were once only limitations. With the ability to operate a two-wheeler, she was better positioned to find a job that would support her family and provide a brighter future for her children. Her newfound skills and knowledge became a source of hope and motivation.

Priya, lived in a small town called Sitapura. Her family was small—just her and two kids. Life was tough, and she struggled to make ends meet. One day, Priya saw a canopy set up in her neighbourhood. It was from the Azad Foundation, and they were offering a two-wheeler training program. Priya was curious. She had never ridden a scooter before, but she wanted to learn. She decided to enrol. The Women With Wheels training was more than just learning how to ride. Priya discovered new skills and learned to speak up for herself. The faculty she met at Azad taught her how to be confident and assertive. As she practiced riding the scooter, her confidence grew. The program helped her understand her rights and how to stand up for them. When Priya finally got her permanent license, she felt a surge of hope. She knew that with this new skill, she could find a good job. For the first time, Priya believed she could give her children a better life. She is now ready to build a future for herself and her kids. Priya felt empowered, knowing she could stand on her own feet and create a brighter path for her family.

Laxmi, lives in Jhalana Kacchi Basti. Her husband drives and rents out an auto-rickshaw. She learned about the two-wheeler and four-wheeler training programs at Azad Foundation from a mobiliser, who explained that the training lasts three months and leads to job opportunities. Eager to improve her life, Laxmi joined the program. She was excited to see other women 'like her' learning to ride scooters. The very next day, she started her training. She applied for a learner's license, understood road signs for safety, and began riding a scooter. Soon she also obtained her permanent licence. With both her learner's and permanent licenses now in hand, Laxmi is ready to start working. She is determined to support her family on her own and become self-reliant. The comprehensive training at the Azad Foundation also taught her self-defence, her legal rights, and her professional conduct. Laxmi feels proud and has discovered the strong, capable person she always knew was inside her.

Shiwani Kumari, is the eldest of five siblings—three sisters and two brothers. They live with their parents. Shiwani learned about the Azad Foundation from a mobiliser who visited her house during a survey. Seeing this as a chance for job training, Shiwani eagerly joined the WWW training program, despite not receiving any support from her family. In her household, there is pressure for her to marry soon, and her parents do not even want her to finish her education. However, Shiwani is determined that women should be self-reliant before considering marriage. As a young woman, she has faced challenges in making decisions about her own life.

Before joining Azad, Shiwani struggled with making choices for herself. But since enrolling, she has learned a great deal. The training has reinforced her belief that women can achieve anything with determination. Her goal is to become self-sufficient and secure a job. Although she was nervous at first, her confidence has grown with practice. She now rides confidently and has recently obtained her permanent license. This achievement has given her a sense of control over her life and made her very happy.

Madhu, is the first woman in her family to ride a scooter. Though her husband owns a motorcycle for work, Madhu has never used it herself. Her family of five includes her husband, who drives an auto-rickshaw and runs a small grocery shop in their neighbourhood to support the household. Previously, Madhu worked at an e-Mitra shop, where she learned how to fill out online forms, make Aadhaar cards, and create ration cards. Unfortunately, she wasn't paid for her work there. Facing financial pressures, she began looking for other job opportunities and discovered the Azad Foundation. Learning to ride a scooter felt like stepping into a whole new world for Madhu. She joined Azad Foundation's two-wheeler program with the hope of mastering scooter riding and eventually finding a job. At Azad, she encountered many women from similar underprivileged backgrounds who were also learning to ride. Their stories of struggle and newfound confidence inspired her deeply. Determined to achieve the same confidence, Madhu eagerly enrolled in the training program. Over three months, she completed the program and particularly enjoyed the English classes. For the first time, she learned how to introduce herself in English, which filled her with pride and a sense of accomplishment. Now, with her new skills and increased confidence, Madhu has opened up new opportunities for herself. She can contribute more effectively to her family's finances and continues to grow personally.

Poonam, grew up in a busy Jaipur neighbourhood, dreaming of independence and self-reliance while pursuing her BA degree. Her life took a turn when she joined the Azad Foundation's scooter training program. Initially, riding a scooter felt daunting, but Poonam was determined to gain the freedom and confidence she sought. Her father was sceptical at first, worried about the low pay in driving jobs. However, Poonam's passion for working in delivery and becoming financially independent convinced him to support her decision. In the beginning, Poonam was nervous about learning to ride. But as she practised, her fear turned into confidence. She learned to navigate the streets of Jaipur with ease and felt a newfound sense of control and freedom. The training also boosted her personal growth. Poonam became more confident, learned to speak up, and felt comfortable going out alone at night. Inspired by her fellow trainees, she was determined to succeed. Receiving her permanent license marked a major achievement. Poonam's journey from nervousness to confidence showcases her resilience and growth. With her new skills, she is ready to embrace financial independence and new challenges.

Ankita, lives in a joint family and as the youngest daughter-in-law, she rarely ventures outside her home without her husband or other family members. Despite this, Ankita felt a deep desire to gain independence and explore new opportunities. When she learned about the Azad Foundation's two-wheeler program from a mobilizer, saw it as a chance to change her life. Her husband supported her decision, but other family members were less enthusiastic. Undeterred, Ankita was determined to learn to ride a scooter and secure a job. Initially, riding a scooter was daunting and filled her with fear. However, as she continued with the training, her anxiety diminished, and she began to ride with increasing confidence. Eventually, she earned her Permanent License, a milestone that filled her with pride and a sense of accomplishment. The training at Azad Foundation did more than just teach her to ride. It empowered her with knowledge about legal rights, gender issues, and health. Ankita gained a deeper understanding of the challenges women face and learned how to navigate them effectively. This new knowledge strengthened her resolve and provided her with a clearer sense of direction in life. Now, with this confidence and skills, Ankita is eager to inspire other women to pursue their paths toward self-reliance. She is delighted with her progress and views her journey as a significant step toward independence and empowerment.

Divya, lives with her family of five in a community where traditional roles and limited opportunities often constrain women's ambitions. Her father works in construction, and her mother helps him, while her siblings attend school. Despite her desire to continue her education, Divya had to leave her studies due to the lack of opportunities for girls in her family. Determined to improve her situation, Divya enrolled in a B.A. program privately and began looking for work. However, finding a job proved challenging. During this period, she learned about the Azad Foundation through a community meeting in her neighborhood. The training programs offered by Azad Foundation caught her attention, and she decided to pursue two-wheeler driving as a way to secure employment quickly. Divya committed to the training, attending regularly and working hard. She was initially nervous about the driving test, but her determination helped her pass with confidence. Earning her permanent license was a significant achievement, symbolizing her hard work and perseverance. Currently, Divya is gaining valuable on-road driving experience and preparing to apply for jobs with companies like Big Basket, with support from Sakha and Azad. Although she does not yet own a two-wheeler, Azad Foundation provides scooters to their trainees, and Divya is hopeful she will receive one soon. This support is crucial for her success in her new career, and she is excited about the opportunities ahead.

The support and encouragement from the Azad Foundation have inspired Khusboo to look forward to a future filled with independence and new opportunities.

Diksha Kanwar, hailing from Agra Road, comes from a family of five, including two brothers and a sister. Her journey toward independence began when she learned about the Azad Foundation from a friend who worked there as a two-wheeler driver. Inspired by her friend's success, Diksha decided to pursue driving training and secure a job. Her friend guided her to Azad and enrolled in the two-wheeler driving program. Diksha's training included not only driving but also valuable sessions on gender issues, health, legal rights, and first aid, as well as participating in rallies. This comprehensive approach provided her with a well-rounded skill set. During her training, Diksha faced challenges, particularly with securing housing due to rent issues. However, the Azad Foundation stepped in to assist her in finding accommodation, ensuring she could focus on her training without added stress. After obtaining her permanent license, Diksha swiftly began working. Initially, Azad helped her get a rental bike, and with time, she was able to purchase her vehicle. She now works with Big Basket, and both Diksha and her family are thrilled with her progress. Reflecting on her journey, Diksha acknowledges overcoming past struggles with depression and finding fulfilment in her work. She is passionate about encouraging other women to join the Azad Foundation and take proactive steps to improve their lives, just as she did. Her story is a testament to the transformative power of support and determination.

Kavita, receiving a permanent driving license was a moment of immense pride. The achievement was celebrated by her family, who were thrilled about the new job opportunities it opened up for her. It also significantly boosted her confidence, allowing her to navigate the city and pursue work more effectively. Kavita discovered the Azad Foundation through a neighborhood survey and decided to enrol in the WWW program. Before joining, she found travelling alone intimidating, as she had never ventured out by herself in the city. The training at Azad not only taught her how to drive but also helped her gain the confidence to navigate the city on her own.

The rising cost of living has made it essential for both partners in her family to contribute financially. Kavita is determined to support her family by providing her child with the best education and upbringing possible. Additionally, the training empowered her to negotiate more effectively with her partner and in-laws, further enhancing her ability to manage both her personal and professional life. Kavita's journey with Azad Foundation has been transformative, equipping her with the skills and confidence needed to improve her family's financial situation and build a better future.

Komal, had never experienced the city so vividly until she started driving through it. Despite their financial struggles, her parents have been incredibly supportive. Her father, who works as a mason and is the family's sole breadwinner, carries the financial load on his own. Komal is determined to help ease this burden by contributing financially. Komal first learned about the Azad Foundation through an outreach campaign in her neighbourhood. When she arrived at Azad, she was initially scared and nervous, as she had no previous experience with riding—she hadn't even learned to ride a bicycle.

However, with the comprehensive training she received at Azad, Komal not only learned to drive and acquire her permanent driving license confidently but also improved her communication skills. The training helped her overcome her initial fears and bolstered her self-assurance. Komal's dream is to become a successful driver and significantly contribute to improving her family's financial situation. Her journey with the Azad Foundation has been a crucial step towards achieving this goal, enabling her to support her family and envision a brighter future.

She obtained her driving licence in the first attempt, that further enhanced her mobility. Additionally, she dreams of starting her own food business, leveraging her skills and independence to pursue entrepreneurial success. Sreya's vision reflects her commitment to creating a fulfilling and self-sufficient future. She is now focused on becoming a professional driver and save capital for her business.

Sultanra's journey is a striking example of how personal determination, family support, and targeted empowerment programs can drive transformative change. From the outset, her supportive family played a crucial role, providing her with the encouragement and confidence needed to pursue her aspirations. Their backing was pivotal when she decided to join the Azad Foundation, an opportunity she learned about through a friend. The friend's advocacy was instrumental in convincing Sultanra's mother to support her decision, setting the stage for her growth.

At the Azad Foundation, Sultanra immersed herself in communication and gender classes that significantly expanded her understanding of social issues and gender dynamics. These classes not only enriched her knowledge but also equipped her with practical skills, including driving. Mastering driving, especially achieving her license on the first attempt, was a major boost to her confidence and motivation. Sultanra is now poised to pursue a career in driving very soon.

Pukhraj Khalid's story is a powerful narrative of a determined mother. Living with her husband and three daughters on a modest income, Pukhraj has faced ongoing challenges in managing expenses and providing for her family. Her deep-seated dream of ensuring a quality education for her daughters and their future independence has been a driving force in her life. However, her limited education, having only completed Class 8, has constrained her job opportunities and kept her confined.

The turning point for Pukhraj came when she found the Azad Foundation. Although she was initially nervous about stepping outside her comfort zone, the mobilisation team from Azad helped her gain the confidence. Pukhraj enjoyed the communication sessions that taught her how to express herself clearly and manage her emotions, which not only improved her personal interactions but also helped her feel more comfortable traveling alone. The gender sessions at were particularly enlightening as they challenged her understanding of societal norms and patriarchal structures, inspiring her to question and confront these issues for herself and her daughters. With her sights set on earning a steady income, Pukhraj is determined to leverage her new skills and experiences to secure a better future for her family. Her journey with Azad Foundation reflects her unwavering commitment to overcoming obstacles and achieving a brighter, more independent life for her

Snaya, lives with her supportive grandmother, who has always encouraged her in every endeavor. She resides separately from her family in Howrah, closer to Azad's training center. Despite her father's traditional views and opposition to her ambitions, Snaya is determined not to conform to societal expectations and dreams of independence. Snaya first learned about Azad Foundation through a friend, and to her surprise, her lifelong dream of learning to drive became a reality. Society had always tried to confine her to traditional roles like mehendi art or beautician work, but Snaya aspired for something more.

Joining Azad Foundation was transformative for Snaya. It boosted her confidence and reduced her hesitation. Since childhood, she had been told she couldn't achieve much, which shattered her confidence. The gender sessions at Azad were particularly enlightening for Snaya. They challenged societal norms, including the acceptance of dowry, which had always troubled her. When faced with a dowry demand from her boyfriend, she bravely ended the relationship, empowered by her confidence. The communication sessions at Azad were also pivotal. After years of being introverted due to lack of confidence, Snaya now strives to speak her mind and express herself. Snaya's ultimate dream is to earn and support herself and her siblings.

Seema, found out about Azad through a leaflet and decided to join due to her financial difficulties. Although she lives with her family, she doesn't have a close relationship with them. She does mehendi artwork, but the income from it isn't enough to meet her needs.

Joining Azad turned out to be a life-changing decision for Seema. She began making new friends and felt less sad. Despite her ongoing challenges, she found comfort in connecting with other women who faced even tougher struggles. She especially enjoyed the English classes, where she could understand some words and relearn things she had forgotten from childhood. The self-defense classes were also a highlight for her. Now, Seema is working at an e-commerce company and living her dream. Her journey with Azad not only improved her skills but also brought her new opportunities and a renewed sense of hope.

Tarannum, lives with her six-year-old son. Struggling to make ends meet, she took on various odd jobs but felt that her lack of education limited her chances for a better income. When she discovered Azad through a survey, she saw a chance for change and urgently joined their two-wheeler program. Joining Azad was transformative for Tarannum. It helped her break free from societal taboos, allowing her to wear clothes she loved and live life on her own terms. The gender and self-defense sessions gave her the confidence to raise her voice against violence, something she had never done before. When her ex-husband began harassing her while she was learning to ride a scooter, she firmly warned him about the legal consequences if he did not stop. This newfound confidence helped her overcome her fear. Before Azad, Tarannum had no friends, but now she feels she is truly living her life. She is working as an e-commerce driver, earning enough to buy what she needs whenever she wants, and escaping the constant state of fear and struggle she once lived in.

Atika's life has been really tough. She lives alone with her three-year-old son and has been through a lot of violence and trauma in her marriage and lack of support from her father who never wanted a girl child. The financial strain and the need to navigate insecure gig work while caring for her young son was very overwhelming for her.

Atika heard about Azad through one of her friends and decided to join. Azad gave her the support she needed. The self-defense classes made her feel stronger and able to stand up to the harsh comments from neighbors and family. The gender sessions helped her understand how violence had been a part of her life for a long time and showed her how to fight against it.

Now, Atika dreams of living a respectful life and giving her son the best future she can. Her story shows how important support and learning can be for people going through hard times.

Pooja, discovered Azad through a leaflet and, seeking a fresh perspective after a challenging incident a few years ago, decided to join. With the unwavering support of her parents, who always stand by her decisions, Pooja found newfound confidence at Azad. She embraced many new experiences, particularly valuing the Sexual and Reproductive Health (SRH) sessions that helped her overcome body image issues and embrace self-acceptance.

Pooja gained valuable insights into sexuality, and the gender and legal sessions clarified many of her doubts, providing crucial information about women's rights—knowledge that proved essential as she navigated a divorce case. Above all, she treasured the friendships she formed at Azad. Pooja's dream is to live life fully and unapologetically. She currently works as a driver for an e-commerce company.

Sathi, first heard about Azad through a survey, and it immediately caught her interest. Living with her parents and younger brother, her family struggled without a stable income. As a separated woman, it was very difficult for her to start over again. Joining Azad was a turning point for her. She learned the importance of speaking up for herself and discovered that women can also be providers, challenging the traditional belief that it's solely a man's job.

Sathi found the gender sessions particularly enlightening, as they helped her break down many social stereotypes. The communication sessions were also very helpful, teaching her to manage and express her emotions instead of keeping them bottled up. Her dream is to earn enough to support her family, just as they have always supported her. Now, she's making that dream a reality by working as an e-commerce driver and helping her family financially.

Khaleda's journey is both inspiring and relatable. Her initial engagement with Azad as a Feminist Leadership Fellow gave her valuable insights into the challenges faced by women, deepening her commitment to advocating for their rights. Faced with financial instability and the need to support her family, she quickly pivoted to practical solutions, enrolling in a two-wheeler program. Her achievement of obtaining a permanent license on her first attempt was not just a personal milestone but a significant boost to her confidence and independence.

Now working as a delivery executive in a reputable e-commerce company, Khaleda has taken significant steps towards becoming the primary breadwinner for her family. Her drive to improve her family's financial situation and secure a better future for her children highlights her resilience and determination. Despite the exhaustion of managing day-to-day challenges, Khaleda remains focused on her dreams and aspirations, determined to build a more stable and prosperous life for herself and her loved ones.

Pampa's story is one of resilience and transformation. After enduring domestic violence and a subsequent divorce, she faced significant challenges during the pandemic, including financial strain and the burden of mounting loans. Unable to manage the high cost of living in Kolkata, she returned to her village and remarried. However, as the pandemic's grip began to loosen, Pampa decided to return to Kolkata and re-enroll with Azad, seeking to rebuild her life.

Her journey with Azad proved transformative. The non-technical sessions, especially the communication class, empowered her to express her emotions and navigate her past traumas. The gender sessions provided her with valuable insights into the subtle dynamics of patriarchy within families, which deepened her understanding and strengthened her resolve.

Passing her permanent license exam on the first attempt was a significant confidence booster, marking a milestone in her newfound independence. Now, working for an e-commerce company, Pampa is dedicated to protecting herself from any form of violence and is focused on saving diligently. Her ultimate dream is to start her own business. Each day, she works toward that goal with determination and hope, envisioning a future where she can build a successful enterprise and secure a better life.

Supriya, lives with her husband and son. Her journey with Azad began when she encountered their doorstep survey and, motivated by the possibility of change, decided to join. Encouraged by positive feedback from friends, she eagerly started attending the training and classes offered by Azad. This marked the beginning of a transformative journey for her.

At Azad, Supriya discovered the courage to stand up against the violence she had faced from her husband, who had been selling her belongings without her consent. The sessions, particularly those focused on Gender & Legal issues, opened her eyes to the patterns of abuse she had previously ignored. This newfound understanding and strength allowed her to confront these issues head-on.

Passing her permanent license exam on the first attempt was a significant boost to her confidence. Now, as a rider for an e-commerce company, Supriya is dedicated to building a better future for herself and her son. Shilpi, grew up in a financially constrained family, despite completing her 10th grade, her dreams of higher education seemed out of reach. Her introduction to Azad came through a feminist leader, sparking her interest in the Women With Wheels programs. Fascinated by scooters, Shilpi never imagined they could offer a path to earning a living until she joined Azad.

As she engaged with the program, Shilpi's confidence began to grow. The gender sessions at Azad were particularly enlightening, revealing how societal norms and family dynamics had long influenced her actions and emotions. This newfound awareness empowered her to assert her decisions more confidently, informing her family of her plans rather than seeking permission.

Riding a scooter brought Shilpi a sense of liberation and joy, symbolizing a significant personal milestone. Passing her permanent license exam on her first attempt was a notable achievement and a testament to her dedication. Now employed as a delivery partner with an e-commerce company, Shilpi is diligently working towards earning a living and rekindling her aspiration to resume her education, with a clear focus on building a brighter future.

Sonali's journey is a powerful example of personal growth and empowerment.

She remained constrained by her circumstances and her husband's controlling behavior. Discovering Azad through a friend marked a turning point, it was not just about mobility but also independence.

The gender classes Sonali attended were pivotal, they provided her with insights into the dynamics of her relationship, highlighting how her husband's affection was used manipulatively to exploit her. The self-defense training she received played a crucial role in her transformation. When her husband attempted physical abuse, Sonali was prepared to defend herself, using the tactics she had learned. Sonali's shift from a passive, sheltered life to one where she actively makes decisions and controls her own destiny is a testament to her courage and the support she received from Azad. Now working at an e-commerce company, Sonali enjoys financial independence and a sense of control that was previously out of reach. Her story highlights the importance of support systems and education in breaking free from restrictive situations and reclaiming one's autonomy.

Opportunities were limited with only a high school diploma until she discovered Azad through a feminist leader of Azad. At Azad, Tiyaasha found a supportive environment where she could express herself openly. The sessions on Sexual and Reproductive Health empowered her with important knowledge and fostered self-acceptance. Additionally, the English classes significantly improved her language skills. With this newfound confidence and skills, Tiyaasha secured a job at an e-commerce company. Now, she is determined to support her mother and pursue her own dreams with renewed energy.

Renuka, lives with her supportive parents and brother, though they face challenges from their conservative neighborhood and relatives. She first heard about Azad through a doorstep survey but was initially skeptical due to past job scams that had hurt her family financially. Over time, positive testimonials and success stories from other trainees helped build her confidence in the program. Determined not to take on roles she found demeaning, like domestic work or caregiving, Renuka decided to join Azad. The Women With Wheels training program helped her become more sociable and confident, breaking away from her previously quiet and solitary life. She especially appreciated the Gender session, which taught her about the ways patriarchal societies suppress women, and the Self-Defense session, which gave her both practical skills and empowerment. She is now achieving her dreams by working at an e-commerce company, dedicated to securing a brighter future for her family and herself.

Priyanka Dey, lives with her husband, who is bravely battling cancer. She previously worked in event management, but the demanding and seasonal nature of the job made it difficult to manage their inconsistent income, impacting their ability to cover medical bills and her daughter's education expenses. When Priyanka learned about Azad through a survey and with encouragement from her sister, who was already enrolled in four-wheeler training, she decided to join Azad's two-wheeler program.

Joining Azad revitalized Priyanka, giving her the strength to face life's challenges and restore her confidence, which had diminished under societal pressures. The Gender session deeply impacted her by highlighting the control women face in society, while the SRH session helped her overcome body insecurities. Priyanka's goals are clear: to support her husband through his cancer treatment and ensure her daughter gets a good education. Her dedication and resilience are evident from her success in passing her PL and Sakha exams on her first attempts, showcasing her commitment to securing a better future for her family.

Mamoni, lived with her family of seven, struggling to make ends meet with their insufficient income. Her education stopped after eighth grade, limiting her job opportunities. Determined not to follow her mother's path as a domestic worker—a job she found undignified—Mamoni sought a more respectable career.

When she heard about Azad from a friend, she eagerly joined, hoping to improve her situation. At Azad, Mamoni found acceptance and support, especially in the SRH sessions, which helped her understand herself better and boosted her confidence. The self-defense sessions also empowered her, allowing her to speak up more confidently.

Despite her initial fears of ridicule, Mamoni is overcoming her insecurities and is now employed at an e-commerce company. Her goal is to support her family and help her mother leave her job as a domestic worker, aiming to create a more dignified and stable future for them all.

Mahamaya, who is separated and lives with her parents, is determined to build a better life for her daughter. Before, she used to work at a boutique but the earnings were insufficient, specially after the pandemic and her separation, it became difficult for her to sustain. When she discovered Azad through a survey, she quickly signed up with strong support from her sister and family.

Azad empowered Mahamaya with the confidence to navigate the city on her own and manage her life without external support. Despite the ongoing disruption from her ex-husband, who refused to return important documents, Azad's Gender and Legal sessions provided her with strategies to handle such situations and understand her legal rights. The self-defense sessions also strengthened her confidence, making her feel capable of facing any challenge.

Now working at an e-commerce company, Mahamaya has recently enrolled her daughter in a reputable school and dreams of providing her with the best possible support and comfort. She continues to move forward with determination and resilience.

Nupur, discovered Azad through surveys conducted by the mobilization team and was immediately motivated. With her husband recently losing his job and struggling to find new employment, he encouraged her to explore opportunities with Azad. Hence, Nupur joined Azad with great enthusiasm. As a result of attaining the training at Azad, Nupur has seen her deep-seated fears gradually fade, empowering her to speak out against violence. She has particularly valued the Gender and Communication sessions, with peer counseling helping her identify her strengths and weaknesses. Nupur now works on managing her emotions better, leading to more mature reactions. Riding a scooty gives her a sense of freedom, and she aspires to earn enough to buy assets for herself and support her family. She is currently pursuing this goal by working at an e-commerce company.

Nasrin, first heard about Azad through a survey and was initially skeptical, thinking it sounded too good to be true. Living in a garage with her two sons, mother, and brothers on a meager family income of ₹6000, she decided to join Azad to improve her situation. Supported wholeheartedly by her family, Nasrin saw it as a chance to make a positive change, especially for her sons' future.

Years of hardship had made Nasrin introverted, causing her to bottle up her emotions and forget how to enjoy life's simple pleasures. Azad provided her with much-needed support and camaraderie among fellow trainees. The non-technical sessions rekindled her desire for education, which she had abandoned due to financial constraints, reminding her of her school days.

Nasrin particularly valued the Gender and Legal sessions, along with Self-Defense, which provided her with valuable knowledge she had previously lacked. Her dream is to rent a better, more suitable home after earning enough money, aiming to give her children a brighter future away from the garage. Currently working at an e-commerce company, Nasrin is determined to turn her dreams into reality.

Sushmita, lives with her mother, father, and grandmother, while her sister recently got married. Her father's small business supports the family. Sushmita's love for driving started at 15 after a community event organized by Azad. At 18, she took a brave step by joining Azad's training program, driven by her passion. With encouragement from friends in the Women on Wheels program and support from family and Azad, Sushmita pursued her dream. She enjoys the Law and Self-defense classes at Azad, which have given her new confidence. Now working as a commercial cab driver, Sushmita plans to keep driving while also continuing her studies, excited for what lies ahead. She aims to support her family financially and weave a successful career for herself.

Monika, comes from a close-knit family in Kolkata, which includes her mother, father, and brother. Right now, she lives with a friend, and they both support themselves through their jobs—Monika works as a hawker, selling goods on the streets, and her friend works as a security guard. Monika's journey with Azad started because a friend recommended their training program to her. Through this program, Monika underwent a significant transformation, gaining a sense of empowerment. She found the sessions on gender and communication especially engaging and helpful. Looking ahead, Monika is determined to continue her job as a sakha cab driver and make progress in her field. The skills and confidence she gained from her training with Azad are driving her ambition and goals.

Sayani, lives in Kolkata with her mother. Their lives took a turn in 2015 when her parents decided to part ways. Since then, Sayani's mom has been working hard as a beautician to make ends meet for the two of them. It was through a friend that Sayani first heard about Azad, and seeing it as an opportunity to support her mom financially, she eagerly decided to join their training program. Driving had always been a childhood dream for Sayani, so she grabbed this opportunity with whole heart. Throughout her time at Azad, she found the Communication and Gender classes particularly fascinating and insightful. Now, as she nears the end of her training, Sayani is filled with determination. Her goal is not only to secure a job but also to continue her studies, balancing both to build a brighter future for herself and her mother.

Madhumita, got married at just 18, which meant she had to stop her education after eighth grade. Her husband, a driver, struggled to provide for the family, so Madhumita began working as a domestic helper after their children were born. Though this work helped support her family, it wasn't the career she wanted. When a friend who was also training with Azad told her about their program, Madhumita saw a chance for a new direction. Despite facing financial difficulties and dealing with illness during her training, she persevered and successfully earned her Permanent License. Now, Madhumita is focused on becoming a professional driver. Her dream is to buy her own car someday, which would provide a steady income and help her move beyond traditional roles. She hopes this will create a brighter future for her family.

Krishna's story is a powerful example of resilience and determination. Despite facing significant challenges—being married young, having to halt her education, and dealing with a difficult marriage—she found the courage to pursue her goals. Her decision to return to education and enter the Azad Foundation's program shows her commitment to self-improvement and breaking stereotypes.

By choosing to become a driver, Krishna is not only working towards personal empowerment but also setting an example for others. Passing her Permanent License exam on her first attempt is a testament to her hard work and dedication. Her story underscores the importance of supporting and empowering women to pursue their ambitions and prove their capabilities. She says, "After coming to Azad she has got wings to explore the world and courage to speak her heart out against any kind of Injustice."

Priyanka's journey to becoming a professional driver is an inspiring tale of determination and hope. She had been working as a caregiver, a job that didn't pay well and left her feeling undervalued. She wanted more—both in terms of respect and financial stability. One day, Priyanka discovered the Azad Foundation through a leaflet. The foundation offered training and support for women who wanted to change their lives, and Priyanka saw it as the perfect opportunity of becoming a professional driver.

Alongside her driving training, she also resumed her studies, working hard to balance both responsibilities. Her perseverance paid off when she passed her PL exam on her very first attempt. Today, Priyanka's story is one of triumph over adversity. Her successful transition from a caregiver to a professional driver not only enhances her own life but also sets a powerful example for others in her community.

Kainat, lives with her family, which includes her father, who works as a driver and earns a modest 12,000 rupees per month. Her household consists of six members, and as a survivor of domestic violence, Kainat faces significant challenges. She is determined to become self-reliant to create a better future for herself and her four-year-old child. When she discovered Azad's two-wheeler training program, Kainat saw it as a valuable opportunity to gain independence and improve her situation. The program promised to equip her with the skills needed for a stable job in a relatively short time. Motivated by her goal of financial security, Kainat dedicated herself to the training. Her hard work paid off when she passed her Permanent License exam on her first attempt. This success has brought her closer to achieving her dream of financial independence and has paved the way for a more secure and hopeful future for her and her child.

Tabassum, a 34-year-old woman, was introduced to Azad through a survey. She lives with her husband and their two children. Her husband is the sole breadwinner, earning just 10,000 rupees a month, which is insufficient to cover all their needs. Motivated by the desire to contribute financially and support her family, Tabassum sought job opportunities but faced challenges due to her limited educational background. During this period of struggle, she learned about Azad's two-wheeler training program. Recognizing it as a promising opportunity to improve her situation, Tabassum decided to enroll. The training promised to equip her with the skills needed to become a rider, a role that would provide a steady income and allow her to contribute significantly to her family's financial stability. By becoming a rider, she aims to achieve financial independence and play a vital role in supporting her household, thus creating a more secure future for her family.

Shazia, lives with her parents and three sisters. One of her sisters, who used to be a Feminist Leader and graduated from Azad's program, inspired Shazia to join the two-wheeler training. Shazia saw how the training had a positive impact on her sister's life and wanted to achieve the same benefits. With her family's total income being only 13,000 rupees a month, it is not enough to meet all their needs. Because of this, Shazia is motivated to complete the training quickly and find a job as a delivery executive. She hopes that by doing this, she can help support her family financially and improve their overall situation. She says "Azad has a great impact on our family, we both sisters are now able to put forward our view and live our life with dignity."

Pinky, lives in a joint family with a total monthly income of 15,000 rupees. Her husband is the main earner, but her brother-in-law's additional income is minimal and does not significantly help with household expenses. Keen to support her husband and enhance their financial situation, Pinky looked for job opportunities. However, her limited education made it difficult to find a suitable position. When Pinky learned about Azad's two-wheeler training program, she saw it as a promising chance to improve her circumstances. The program offered a practical way to gain valuable skills and find employment. Determined to make the most of this opportunity, Pinky completed the training and became a skilled driver. She is now employed by an e-commerce company, where she earns a steady income. This job not only helps her contribute to the family's finances but also fulfills her goal of financial independence and stability.
